CAIRO IN FLAMES.

A Disastrous Conflagration Destroys the [illegible] Quarter in the Egyptian City—Incendiaries at Work.

SPECIAL DISPATCHES TO THE OREGONIAN.

CAIRO, Oct. 1.—A train from Benha had just arrived with the 60th rifles when an ammunition wagon in the station exploded, killing a detail in the train with some invalids, a [illegible] and a number of whom are unknown. The train [illegible] and the fire spread to the railroad depot, which was quickly burned. The flames next reached the commissary depot adjoining, and thence extended to some of our magazines, which exploded. It was found impossible to prevent the reserve ammunition from being destroyed.

The train with the 60th rifles arrived just as another was starting from Alexandria with trucks containing ammunition and shells. One on a truck exploding, scattered the shell all over the station and demolished the end of the carriage of the Benha train, in which were a number of invalids. It is feared some soldiers and natives were buried among the debris. The Duke of Connaught and the Duke of Teck, with their staffs, are on the spot. The engines are going forward, but the fire spreads so rapidly that it is hopeless to expect anything of consequence to be saved. The truck with 300 rounds of ammunition has not yet exploded, rendering approach perilous.

The whole of commissariat stores, the main ordnance stores, the greater part of the forage, all hospital necessaries, and a large quantity of clothing is destroyed. The estimated loss is £400,000.

LATER.—It is reported that three of the rifles were killed and six wounded by the explosion. Some of the army service corps were also wounded. Several natives were killed and a number of inhabitants were crushed in the crowd running about, carrying children, money and other portable articles, under the impression that Cairo had been surprised by a new enemy. It is supposed the explosion was caused by sparks from the passing train. A major of marines and a private were also wounded and an Arab killed. There may be many more victims, but these are all yet seen.

Work of an Incendiary.

Explosions at the railway station continued at brief intervals for over three hours. The passenger station was saved, but all the freight sheds, containing ten days provisions for the army, and about two hundred trucks of ammunition were destroyed. Five men were killed and twenty wounded. The fire was of incendiary origin. Subsequent to the first explosion two Arabs were seized in the act of firing trucks and a third escaped. Troops patroled the streets at night. During the fire at the railway station two men with torches were arrested while attempting to fire the adjacent quarter of the town.

Leaving the Army in Egypt.

LONDON, Oct. 1.—The Times says it has been decided to retain for the present 12,000 men in Egypt to carry on and consolidate the work for which the suppression of Arabi Pasha does little more than clear the way.

End of the War.

CAIRO, Oct. 1.—The authorities consider the country is generally so rapidly returning to its normal condition, that a further display of force in the provinces is unnecessary.

Disastrous Floods.

Walsh Found Guilty of Murder.

DUBLIN, Oct. 1.—The brother of Walsh, hanged at Galloway, was found guilty, as accused, of the murder of Kavanaugh. The jury recommended Walsh to mercy on account of his youth. The jury also recommended Walsh to mercy because there was no positive evidence he actually fired the shot which caused Kavanaugh's death. The prisoner was very violent and shouted loudly that witnesses had given false evidence. He was sentenced to be hanged on the 28th. Judge Lawson said he would forward the jury's recommendation to the proper quarter, but he could hold out no hope to the prisoner that it would be acted upon. Walsh again became greatly excited and cried out that justice would yet overtake his false accusers.

Orders from the Government.

LONDON, Oct. 1.—The government telegraphed to Cairo ordering an investigation of the explosion and a prompt report of the result.

Russia's Finances.

ST. PETERSBURG, Oct. 1.—The revenue from indirect tax during the financial year of 1881 exceeded the estimate 277,800 roubles.

A Remarkable Speech.

The following paragraph is an extract from a speech delivered a few days ago by Hon. E. B. Eshelman, a prominent democrat of Wayne county Ohio. It sets forth in a remarkable manner one phase of the discussion of the liquor question in Ohio:

Before the war, in the good old democratic days, a man could buy a good square drink of whisky for three cents—three drinks, morning noon and night, for nine cents. Now one drink costs 10 cents and three drinks cost 30 cents. A laboring man or mechanic who earned only $1 a day could, in the old democratic days, buy three drinks a day and have 91 cents left with which to buy necessaries for his family. Now a laboring man or mechanic who earns only $1 a day, after paying for three drinks of whisky, will have only 70 cents left with which to buy necessaries for his family. And Governor Foster wants to have liquor so taxed that whisky will cost 15 cents a drink. If it were so taxed the working man or mechanic with an income of $1 a day, after paying for three drinks would have left only 55 cents with which to buy necessaries for his family. It takes a bushel of wheat, at $1 a bushel, to pay for 10 drinks of whisky now. If Governor Foster shall have his way, it will take a bushel and a half of dollar wheat to buy 10 drinks. In the good old democratic days the farmer could have bought 10 drinks with a bushel of dollar wheat and have 70 cents.

Licenses to Marry.

Portland (Me.) Argus.

A young man entered the city clerk's office a day or two ago and wished to be published. He was asked his name and the name of the lady. He gave the latter as Miss Blank. But what's her christian name was asked. Why, she hasn't got any, replied the young man. But she must have a first name said the genial clerk. No she hasn't, persisted the man. Well, what do you call her when you speak to her? Oh, I call her [illegible], said the man. He got his certificate. A lady called a short time ago and wanted a certificate, and when the clerk asked the man's name she said she didn't know, but he was outside and she would ascertain. She went out and soon returned and told his last name. "What is his first name?" asked the clerk. "There," she said, "I forgot to ask him; I will go back and learn." A month after she called again and wanted to know if the man could marry any one but her on that certificate. The clerk asked her if she was not married and she said no; the fellow had stolen the certificate and had run away with her daughter, and she wanted to know if he could get married on a certificate she had paid for.

FRAUD OPENLY CHARGED.

General Stewart L. Woodford Repudiates His Party's Action.

FOLGER HESITATES TO ACCEPT.

Gossip and Rumor Busy with the Names of his Probable Successor in the Cabinet—"Me Too" Platt Spoken of.

SPECIAL DISPATCHES TO THE OREGONIAN.

NEW YORK, Sept. [illegible].—Gen. Woodford, U. S. district attorney for this section, has been interviewed by the Brooklyn Eagle on the political situation. Gen. Woodford said:

"It is time for plain speaking, as there are fears at New York at this moment far reaching in their consequence. It is impossible to reach any other conclusion than that fraud entered into the nomination made for governor by the republican party at Saratoga. It was certainly effected and it is vain for any republican to pretend to be blind to the facts. I cannot conceive how I can serve my country or my party by shutting my eyes to them. Fraud and forgery were resorted to in order to influence the action of the state committee and the judgment of the state convention. This wrong doing vitiates all the convention did.

"I have denounced the use of tissue ballots in South Carolina and of rifles in Mississippi. Fraud is fraud, whether committed in South Carolina or New York. Voting falsely in the name of others has as much of fraud in Saratoga as in Charleston. Honest men cannot submit to or tolerate it anywhere. If it triumphs this year, can we secure any guarantee against it in the action of the republican national convention. Right and party safety are on the same side. The best place to contend against wrong is on the very spot it makes its first appearance." In answer to the question, "What is the best way out of the difficulty?" Gen. Woodford said:

"The shortest and most honorable way out of it is for Judge Folger to refuse to accept the nomination made, under the circumstances. He served in the senate when I had the honor of presiding over that body. I have an affectionate personal regard for him, and I advise him to do this for his ability and for his purity of character. I honor him as a jurist, but the republican party will not endorse the methods through which he was nominated. He cannot afford to do so by accepting the nomination. I hope and trust he will not, and in saying this I cheerfully accept whatever disadvantages the utterance involves, being sure of this, at all events, that I am true to my conscience, my party and my country."

Condemning the Nominations.

NEW YORK, Oct. 1.—The young republicans of Brooklyn, who may be said to have forced Mayor Low upon the party a year ago, and to have secured his election, met last night in the largest hall in Brooklyn, other than the academy of music. The hall was crowded. Resolutions were offered to the effect that the will of the mass of the republican voters was suppressed by an open and scandalous abuse of official power; that the party machinery, through the immense influence of the patronage of the federal government, was captured and manipulated in the interest of an official candidate; that the administration and the methods practised for securing the nominations for governor and lieutenant governor be condemned, and that such nominations impose no party obligations on republicans to support them, the nominations not being entitled to respect. The resolutions were almost unanimously adopted. General Tracy, Charles Andrews and A. B. Hepburn, republican nominees, were endorsed.

Guessing Folger's Successor.

NEW YORK, Oct. 1.—A Washington special says: Gossip is still busy as to the probable successor of Secretary Folger. Secretary Chandler is the latest rumored selection. It is said that in fixing up the slate for future presidential operations, President Arthur has discovered that a change in his original cabinet will be necessary. He recognizes the fact that since the Maine election Jas. G. Blaine is likely to prove his most formidable opponent, and the rumor goes that he can use Chandler to circumvent Blaine. Folger is worth nothing to Mr. Arthur in Mr. Arthur's cabinet; but Folger as governor of New York will be worth a good deal. Every legitimate effort will be used to elect him, and no influence will be spared in the election as none was spared in the nomination.

Folger will Resign.

NEW YORK, Oct. 1.—A Washington special says: "Agent Lemon, who seems to have a personal knowledge of the matter, says that the resignation of Secretary Folger is now in the hands of the secretary of state subject to the official notification of his nomination for governor of New York and his formal acceptance of the same. The fact that he has gone to Geneva, where he will be met by a committee, carrying with him papers in large quantity of unfinished business to be attended to there, gives us to believe that he does not intend to return to Washington and that there is good foundation for the statement above made.

Folger's Hesitation to Accept.

The position he places himself in by his hesitation in announcing his purpose to resign is very much regretted by his friends, who are as anxious as his enemies here to have him give up the treasury portfolio. Certain people, who have pretty thoroughly canvassed the matter of Folger's succession, have narrowed the number of those spoken of in that connection down to two. These are New of Indiana and Platt of New York. Senator Jones, who is a close friend of President Arthur, and who also has been spoken of, says he will not take the place, for the reason that if he did the senatorship from Nevada would be vacant and might be filled by a democrat, and in view of this danger it is thought probable the president would not offer him the position. Chandler says there is nothing whatever in the statement that he would probably be offered the office of secretary of the treasury, and adds that he does not believe the president has ever considered the question of Secretary Folger's successor.

Up to the close of last week S. C. Rogers of South Coos river had this year made and marketed 380 cheeses, averaging about 22½ pounds each. Before the season closes he expects to add to the number 125 more. He realizes about 14 cents per pound, and finds a ready market on the bay and at San Francisco for all he can furnish.

Coast Mail: Albert Belcher, who resides at Reed's place on Winchester bay, at the mouth of the Umpqua river, met with a dangerous accident something more than a week ago. He was killing the seals that robbed his gill nets set for salmon in the bay, and in moving the gun in the boat the piece was discharged, sending a bullet through his hand, shattering the shoulder joint and lodging against the shoulder-blade. The physician summoned pronounced the wound dangerous, but there are now hopes of his recovery.

Coast Mail: The fruit trees of this vicinity look unusually well this season, and have not suffered from blight as in former years; but in some localities a little green louse has been doing some damage. It makes its appearance on the under side of the leaves of the new growth, causes them to turn black and stunts the tree. One rancher on Daniels creek says he exhausted himself and his remedies without affecting the pest, but a man from the Siuslaw wiped them out with a liberal dispensation of flea powder among the leaves.

Olympia Courier: The members of the colony, now at Whatcom, on Bellingham bay, are steadily though slowly, making headway. Starting with nothing they have many difficulties to encounter, but are gradually overcoming them and increasing in confidence of the ultimate success of their undertaking. They have erected a heavy and substantial frame foundation for a grist and saw mill, to be operated by water power, and at last accounts had nearly completed a large ditch for a flume to convey water to the mill. A fine stream empties into the bay at the mill site. This, at some distance from the shore, they will divert to their flume and thus utilize the water now wasted. It is said that 400 members of this colony, with an excellent outfit and considerable cash, are now on their way from Kansas.

AN EXTRAORDINARY CANADIAN CASE

An Old Time Murder Revived by a Squabble Over an Estate.

The great will case in which the late eccentric Miss Barbara Scott was the testatrix, and that has been in court in Montreal for some time past, has reached a conclusion at last, the judge taking the matter into consideration. It cannot fail to be a difficult subject to decide whether the deceased was sane or insane, as such contradictory evidence by intelligent and respectable witnesses has probably never been heard in any court of justice as in this cause celebre. All who were on the stand agreed that the deceased was of a miserly habit, and would not part with a dollar if she could help it. She actually denied herself the necessaries of life, kept no servant, and lived in the midst of disgusting filth; yet she willed some $40,000 to McGill university, $10,000 to an hospital and other sums to public charities. After her death various large sums in bank bills were found by her executors rolled up in scraps of paper in the house. She loathed paying bills, and especially lawyers, although she was never out of court, being of a most litigous nature. Mr. Mackenzie's ex-minister of justice, Hon. Mr. Laflamme, convulsed the court and audience by describing the personal onslaught the testatrix made upon him when he sent in his bill of costs. It is said all her legion of other advocates could tell a similar tale if they were as frank as the ex-minister. For several years before her death the deceased lived alone, scarcely ever going out unless to see some of the companions of her old school days. She was very seldom visited by any but her physician, whose advice she took in devising the money to the university, and the Presbyterian minister of St. Gabriel's church, at which she was an attendant for many years. She was the daughter of a baker, who came from Scotland with his wife over sixty years since and settled here. An old resident of the city, who remembers the father and mother of Miss Scott very well from the time of their arrival up to their death, relates the following strange story about the lives of these people: On coming to Montreal, then a very small place, Mr. Scott commenced a bakery, and was succeeding as well as "canny Scots" generally do in a new country, when the inhabitants were startled beyond measure by learning that both husband and wife had been arrested on the heinous charge of murder. The affair created intense excitement at the time, but on the fact being published the citizens became frenzied with horror. The warrant upon which they were arrested was granted on application of the head constable of Aberdeen, Scotland, who was sent out by the authorities of the ancient city to bring the young couple back. Their extradition to Scotland was immediately granted, and they went there and stood their trial. It appeared from the evidence that shortly before they left the "Land o' Cakes" a wealthy inhabitant of the city where they resided mysteriously disappeared. Searches until after the Scotts left were all in vain. It was well known that the missing man was in the habit of visiting the house of the baker, but the fact excited no suspicions whatever. However, some months after the Scott family took their departure for Canada the house where they carried on the bakery was let to another person in the same trade. In making some excavations to improve the cellar of the house, the workman turned up a corpse which was recognized as that of the missing man. His deliberate murder was laid to the charge of Mrs. Scott, and her husband was held as an accomplice in the terrible crime. The trial was a very protracted one, and is described as exciting intense interest, not only in Scotland, but throughout the United Kingdom as well as in Canada. It was looked upon as a cold blooded butchery for the sake of the money alone, but there being only circumstantial evidence, and the prisoners having ample means to defend themselves, they escaped by a verdict in the old Scotch fashion of "not proven." On obtaining their liberty they returned at once to Montreal, resumed the baking business, and finally retired with a competence, which was left in equal parts to the family of two sons and two daughters. One of the sons became a prominent lawyer, but died, leaving all he had to the members of his family who survived. The remaining son was a civil engineer, and died shortly after his elder brother. His sister also went to her grave. The youngest sister died a few years since, leaving Barbara the most eccentric of all, behind. When the latter gave up the ghost two years ago the family became extinct. Now the lawyers are [illegible] privy council gives a final decision in the case.

SAN FRANCISCO HARBOR.

Active Measures Being Taken for Much Needed Improvement.

REPORT OF THE PACIFIC COAST ENGINEERS.

Railroads in California to be Regulated as Regards Rates and Fares—Four Cents Per Mile the Maximum Rate.

SPECIAL DISPATCHES TO THE OREGONIAN.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 1.—The report of Colonel G. H. Wendlinger, in charge of river and harbor improvement on the pacific coast has been made at the war department with regard to the San Francisco harbor. After speaking of the obstructions of navigation caused by the foundering of the British steamer Escanaba in the entrance to the harbor and the plans to remove the wreck, the engineer says:

"On February 1st, 1881, a report of the causes which are tending to diminish the commercial value of the harbor was submitted to the department in obedience to a resolution of the house of representatives, dated June 12th, 1880. This report discussed all the information upon this subject available at that time, and pointed out the advisability of an additional examination for the purpose of comparison with surveys made in previous years, the effect of any of certain deposits known to have occurred within the bay upon the depth of water on the bar at the entrance to the harbor. The last systematic survey was made in 1873. Comparative surveys at other points within the harbor, particularly in San Pablo bay, at this period, will be valuable in giving a continuous history of the harbor, and together with an investigation of the sources which supply material to make shoals, may suggest a method of modifying the defects existing. This harbor is peculiarly of national value to the United States, its position controlling in an unusual degree the commerce of the adjacent ocean."

It is thought that the sum of $15,000 can be profitably employed in obtaining information which would enable the inquiry of the house of representatives to be satisfactorily answered with regard to the improvements necessary. The harbor engineer says the project consists in the erection of two stone jetties from the Oakland shore and in the excavation of a channel between the jetties and increase of a tidal prism.

According to the report the jetties are well advanced and the channel is also in process of being enlarged. The next operation to be undertaken is to provide an increase of tidal prism, to be accomplished by dredging the harbor and by connecting it by a tidal canal with the adjoining estuary of San Leandro. The amount available of last year's appropriation is $63,399, which will be applied to dredging the upper basin. Two hundred thousand dollars was appropriated by an act of congress of August, 1882. The amount required for the completion of the work is estimated at $1,014,579.

The engineer estimates that $400,000 can be profitably expended next year in improvements, and in the enlargement of the Wilmington harbor. The engineer says the first step ought to be the excavation of the channel to give it the dimensions of 100 by 16 feet instead of 235 by 12 feet as at present. Material obtained by this excavation is to be deposited on the lines of jetties extended into the bay of San Pablo. These jetties are then to be raised by stone from Catalina island, and as the project develops, a stone jetty inside of Dead Man's island is to be raised to high water mark. One hundred thousand dollars was appropriated by congress last session for the work and it is thought it can be completed for $191,766, which sum the engineer thinks can be profitably expended next year. Bids have been invited according to the engineer's report for the improvement of the channel in the Sacramento river at the six-mile bar above Sacramento. On this improvement it is proposed to apply a portion of the last appropriation of August, 1882, to the construction and repair of barriers in the Yuba bearing American rivers substantially as stated in the report of January, 1882, and the remainder to the maintenance of a snag boat in the upper river. As the appropriation asked for in this report is to be applied to the maintenance of a boat and the continuation of a system of impounding mining detritus, the amount available for work is $264,685 and it is estimated that $20,000 can be expended next year.

Accompanying this report is one from Assistant Engineer Smith, in charge of the snag boat, in which he says: It is expected more attention will be paid this year to improving the depth of water through the bars of the upper river, and it is thought three feet can be maintained from San Sonie bar down and thirty inches above this point to Squaw hill. With regard to improvements of San Joaquin river, the report speaks of the necessity of continuing the dredging of Stockton and Mormon sloughs. Owing to the depth of it and the mining detritus it is proposed in the present season to make the last of the cutoffs which it is thought it will be necessary to make in the river at Devil's Elbow. Stockton and Mormon channels will be improved by dredging. The upper river will be surveyed preparatory to this work in low water season and a large number of streams will be cleared away. The amount appropriated and available for operations this year is $45,078 and it is estimated $100,000 can be profitably expended next year.

Adopting Railroad Rates.

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 1.—A meeting of railroad commissioners was held Thursday afternoon, when Gen. Stoneman moved to amend a resolution offered by Mr. Cone reducing the maximum rate of fare over over railroads to three cents per mile. The motion was lost by a tie vote. The resolution offered by Cone, fixing the rate at four cents per mile was then adopted, rates to go into effect November 1st. The railroad companies are notified to appear before the commissioners on October 17th to show cause, if any, why the rate fixed should not be adopted.

WHAT DEMOCRATIC PAPERS SAY.

Lane County to John Long.

Eugene City Guard, Dem.

Most of our readers are aware, no doubt, of the course taken by John Long in the Oregon legislature, now in session. Why Mr Long found it necessary to cast his vote for J. H. Mitchell for U. S. senator, we will not attempt to answer or explain. That Mr. Long in thus voting for Mitchell has betrayed his constituents, forfeited his pledges and forsaken his avowed party principles, no one will undertake to deny. The democrats of Lane county were and are especially opposed to Mitchell, not only because he is a republican in politics, but for other equally sufficient reasons. The democracy, as well as the better element of the republican party in Lane county, are and have been opposed to John H. Mitchell, because he is well known to have been a professional lobyist ever since the expiration of his last term in the U. S. senate in the interests of the great corporations of the country; because he is and has been the hired attorney of these corporations; because he is the leader of the stalwart element in this state, because he is a boss, the avowed leader and dictator of the spoils system in Oregon politics; because he is recognized by the better element of his own party and the leading republican journals of the state as a corrupter of the ballot box; because he is a disgrace to the morals of our people. It was well known to Mr. Long (as well as to Mr. Eakin) that the better element of both parties in Lane county were strongly opposed to this man Mitchell. Then let Mr. Long explain, if he can, why it became necessary for him to forsake his party, to go back upon the men who elected him, to forfeit his pledges made not only to the convention that gave him the honor of a place on the ticket, but also the pledges made by him to the people of Lane county, throughout the entire campaign immediately preceding his election. No man can vote for John H. Mitchell and ever expect the support or confidence of the better element of either party in Lane county, or in the state. The men who are working for his election, and the means employed by them to secure this result, are a disgrace to any party.

Onstein's Illustrious Example.

Benton Leader (Dem),

On the first ballot taken on last Saturday for United States senator, four members of the legislature who were nominated and elected by the democrats of their respective counties, having a candidate before the joint convention regularly nominated by a democratic caucus in which they themselves participated, and calling themselves democrats, cast their votes for J. H. Mitchell, republican candidate for United States senator, and have continued so to do on subsequent ballots. These men are Senators J. M. Siglin, of Coos and Curry, and William Sifers, of Josephine, and Representatives W. R. Curtis, of Baker, and John Long, of Lane. We know not what considerations may have induced these gentlemen to depart from the plain path of duty. We are certain that the constituents of one of them have placed the seal of their condemnation unmistakably upon the act, and this condemnation applies with equal force to all the others.

Had these men refused to go into caucus, and persisted in voting for Mitchell from the first, while the violation of the trust reposed in them by their constituents would have been no less flagrant, they might have preserved some show of consistency, and avoided the odium of the charge of having sold their votes. As it is, no amount of argument or explanation will convince the people that their course was not the result of a corrupt bargain, and a simple delivery of the goods; and the general verdict will be that the appropriate thing for each of these members to do would be to make a speech similar to that delivered in the house by Onstein, of Baker, who sold himself in 1872, and then like him sail by the first steamer that leaves the state. We reproduce Onstein's speech that they may have ample time to commit it before the close of the session, and hope they may each deliver it with all of Onstein's thundering eloquence. Mr. Onstein said:

Mr. Speaker and Gentlemen.—When I came here I was ragged and dirty, and not a cent in my pocket, and I was a democrat. Look at me now! I've got a fine suit of clothes, a plug hat, kid gloves, a gold-headed cane and five thousand dollars in my pocket, and I'm a blank or a blank of a republican?"

The Democrats who Vote for Mitchell.

East Oregonian, Dem.

He is the very embodiment of corruption, politically, socially and professionally. * * * The proper course for the democrats—the only honorable course for them—was to let the republican factions fight out their own battle. * * * By voting for Mitchell they have violated their implied pledges; they have betrayed their constituents; they have proved traitors to their trust. The democrats of Lane have called upon one of the infamous four to resign. The constituencies of the other traitors ought to take the same action. The political aspirations of all these false men ought to be buried beneath a mountain of rebuke and reprehension. Of course we cannot say that they were bought, but we believe they were. Many persons and papers who are interested in Mitchell's cause will scout this idea, but they will all believe in it just the same. Let these dishonored men remember that in spite of their protestations, which nobody believes; in spite of the mercenary tools of Mitchell, who deceive no one, they are despised by men of all parties.

Bill W. and J. Hipple-M.

Dallas Itemizer.

Bill Watkinds is known to be a great man for "affidavits." But when the long-time boss of the democratic party gets up affidavits for the boss of the republican party, it is getting to be pretty nearly a case of the lion and the lamb.

A Proper Reminder.

Dallas Itemizer, Ind.

Mitchell's record has been a chief point in the arraignment of the republican party by the democrats. And yet Mitchell will have to be elected, if at all, by democratic votes.

No Doubt of It.

Eugene City Guard.

If Mitchell was a candidate before the people of this county he would be beaten at least 600 votes, and it would not surprise us if it would reach 1000.

Linn County Sentiment.

Albany Democrat.

Not one in ten of the republicans of Linn county would vote for Mitchell or a Mitchell man, knowing him to be such, much less endorse him.

The Daily Oregonian

MONDAY MORNING, OCTOBER 2, 1882.

A LITTLE MISTAKE.

The boss started out for a walk-over. He was so sure of it that he grew incontinent—no unusual thing with him—long before he reached Oregon and let the information slip from him at San Francisco that there would be no opposition to his election. Election on the first ballot was the result for which he had prepared himself. His advices from Oregon, furnished by the class who for the past three weeks have constituted his high-toned lobby at Salem, left him no doubt of it. He caused his coming to be telegraphed as that of a conquering hero. Certain great newspapers, acting in concert, and which speak of their mutual admiration society as "the republican press of the state," proclaimed the coming triumph of the greatest man who ever condescended to sit in the Senate of the United States. It would be a unanimous thing; and opposition, blinded with the effulgence of coming glory, would slink away and hide its diminished head.

But these expectations and predictions have failed to "materialize." The boss now begins to comprehend the extent of the mistake he made when he permitted his ardent supporters, two-thirds of whom make spoils-hunting in one form or another a trade, to persuade him that they were representatives of the sentiment of the state. It was easy and safe, doubtless, to speak for this "professional" class. But it was a serious blunder when the people were forgotten.

The truth is the effort to elect Mitchell has been made in total ignorance or supreme contempt of public opinion. No estimate has been made of moral forces. It is not strange, since Mitchell and his band of active supporters have no conception of any forces in politics but those of intrigue, cunning, deceit, circumvention and corruption. By these instruments they have confidently expected to win. They packed the caucus and thought they had gained their object. But a "set-up" caucus is spurned just the same as any other fraudulent job, and rightly too. Then the corruptibility of democratic members was confidently relied on. Here, too, the calculation has failed. The situation enforces the lesson that open, plain and honorable ways are best in politics as in all other affairs. But the Mitchell party of Oregon will probably never be able to learn it.

H. W. S.

A PECULIAR VERDICT.

The committee appointed to investigate the Nichols-Ford transaction at Salem will, it is said, report to the house to-day that Mitchell had no part in the affair and no relation to it; that Nichols' course was straightforward and honest, and that Ford merits censure from the legislature. This conclusion is a very remarkable one. If Ford deserves censure, it must be upon conviction, and if he be convicted how can Mitchell be blameless? The assumption that Ford was acting an independent part in the matter is violent, and his plea that he was "joking," is absurd. Ford admits all that Nichols charged. Impecunious men like him do not go about making offers of $8000 to $10,000 for votes without the authorization of somebody. Of course, it was not proven that he was authorized by Mitchell, nor did anybody expect that such proof would be obtained. That he was acting in Mitchell's interest is the only fact that need be noticed as the case now stands. Bribery is, from its nature, the most secret of crimes. Ford's known unreliability is put forward as evidence that he was not an authorized and trusted agent in the matter. Does anybody suppose that high-minded men are at command for jobs of this sort? Do men of reliability engage in the business of bribery? Further, it is known that Ford had been for a week in and about Salem, as a friend and "claquer" of Mitchell. Why was it that Mitchell sent to Ford before the investigation began? It was the business of the committee and its attorney to find its witnesses, and not the business of Mitchell. Evidently he thought it desirable to "post" the witness, and in sending Bill Watkinds and Hayden on that mission used an excellence of judgment quite unusual with him.

And why was Mitchell allowed by the committee a share in the investigation? It was charged that Robert Ford had offered a bribe to D. F. Nichols to vote for Mitchell, and the committee was appointed to investigate the charge. It was the committee's business to examine the charge independent of its relations to Mitchell. They find that the charge is true, that Nichols' course was correct and honest, that Ford was guilty and merits censure, but that Mitchell is innocent. The verdict is peculiar indeed.

BOTH PARTIES REFUSE.

Unless more democrats can be corrupted, of which respectable members of the party say there is small probability, the representative of bossism, who has been fighting so desperately to force his election, is at the end of his tether. The eighteen republican members stand firmly where they have stood from the first, and where honor and consistency require them to stand to the end. All the efforts of this desperate place-seeker to weaken their position have failed. So far as Mitchell is concerned, they command the situation. They do not seek to command it further. From the first their conduct has shown that they are willing to vote for any republican of standing and worth, but they will never vote for Mitchell. Democratic sentiment too is rising against him. All the better element of that party opposes him. The opposition is as much on moral as on political grounds, and even more. For years past the life, character, and methods of J. H. Mitchell have furnished the principal material for democratic arraignment of the republican party in this state; and, it may be added, the principal material which has weighted and borne down the republican party. It caused the republican defeats of 1873, 1874, 1876 and 1878, and would have caused defeats in 1880 and 1882 had he been in the state. With unsparing denunciations has the democratic party set forth the infamy of the man and his methods, and with such success that they easily carried the state again and again. Failing now to get his own party to elect him he goes to the democratic party for support, and asks that party to assume the responsibility of electing him. Every decent man in it naturally revolts at the proposition.

H. W. S.

NEARING THE END.

Mitchell started upon his effort to force himself into the senate perfectly aware that there would be resistance, but misled by the supposition that the resistance would have its limits. But aggression has its limits, too. He has gained some votes, but numbers in such a case, when they fall short of enough, signify nothing; and now, wanting four votes, he may be further from his object than he seemed to be when he wanted ten. It is regarded as highly improbable that he will gain a single additional vote from the democratic side; and of course not one of the eighteen republicans ever can or ever will vote for him.

The prospect of the defeat of this unscrupulous politician, who has been pushed by his selfish ambition to the last extreme of indecent place-seeking, has never from the first appeared so promising as now. It is believed that he never will get an additional vote, and that the necessity of making a change in the programme will now very soon be manifest to not a few who have hitherto voted for him. Many of these scout the idea that he is the "only man." So far they have voted for him for reasons which to them no doubt have seemed sufficient; but the conditions are rapidly changing—in fact have totally changed. To all appearances, the end, whatever it may be, is not far off. The eighteen have not taken their stand in any man's interest, and they hold it invincibly because it is the course which seems to them to be demanded by considerations of the highest and most disinterested kind.

IN THE BRITISH PARLIAMENT.

Public bills, whether they be introduced by ministers or private members, go through many stages before reaching the statute book. At the outset, leave is formally asked for their introduction. It is only in the case of important bills that a speech is made at this stage explanatory of the purpose of the measure. As a rule, this is a mere formality, a preliminary to the printing of the bill, which follows immediately on leave being given to introduce it. It is on the second reading that the principal fight takes place if the bill is to be contested. It is understood—though the understanding is grieviously disregarded—that on second reading all that the house has to do is to debate the principle of the bill, leaving its details for consideration in committee. If a bill pass its second reading, a day is named for committee. When the house resolves itself into committee, the speaker leaves the chair, the mace is removed from the table, and to the chairman of committee are deputed many of the functions and much of the authority of the speaker. Whilst the speaker is in the chair, a member can speak only once on a particular motion. In committee, he may speak as often as he likes—a variation of rule which has a striking effect upon the tone of the sitting. With the speaker in the chair, members are oratorical; in the presence of the chairman of committee, they are conversational. When a bill has passed committee there awaits it the stage of report (that is, the amendments made in committee are reported to the house), and finally the stage of third reading; after which, if it has been introduced into the house of commons, it goes to the house of lords, where it proceeds through precisely similar stages.

A queer view of the "marriage insurance" system is given by a writer in a southern paper. He was asked whether he thought the wedding of a certain young lady would take place at the time said to have been set. He gave his opinion and asked the reason for the inquiry. "Oh," was the response, "I have bought four matrimonial policies of $3,000 each on her, and I'm anxious to know if I'll get my money." "Does she know of this?" "Oh, no. That isn't necessary. Anybody can take out a policy on anybody else. If you know of a lady that is engaged and will not marry within five months from the time you take a policy on her, you can get any amount on her wedding that you want. I suppose there is $25,000, or perhaps double that, on the young lady I asked you about." "How does the company make its money?" "I suppose it bets on the fickleness of the young folks. No policy will be paid except five months after it is taken out. There are very few couples they think that love each other well enough to marry that will wait five months to marry. If they do, five months of engaged life is full of dangers."

Longfellow is quoted by Prof. Boyesen as saying in regard to the hexameter: "The newspaper critics who insist that hexameter is not verse merely advertise their own ignorance or their imperfect perception of meter. No classically trained man who has been taught to scan Homer and Virgil in his youth will have the slightest difficulty in scanning the same meter in English. A number of Latin meters, such as the saphic, and the elegiac verse, have been perfectly domesticated in German, and there is no valid reason why they should not be in English. The objection so frequently urged, that the English is too abrubt and monosyllable for the flowing Latin meters, is not, to my mind, an insuperable one. If we depended entirely upon the Saxon element of the language, our hexameters would probably not be euphonious; but the Latin element of the language supplies the stately polly-syllable flow which the hexameter requires, and the mixture of the two elements has often a very fine rymthmic effect."

In the October number of the North American Review, Prof. Charles S. Sargent, of Harvard University, writes upon forest preservation as a national question. Prof. Sargent's knowledge of the extent, condition and laws of growth of our forests is probably more full and accurate than that of any other man in the country, his professional studies as a botanist and his special investigations in connection with the preparation of the forestry bulletins of the census bureau giving him that pre-eminence. In his opinion the time has come for action by the federal and state governments to protect our forests from the serious curtailment or actual destruction of which they are in danger though wasteful lumbering operations, fires, and the ravages of browsing animals. The old theory that forests produce rain is rejected by Prof. Sargent. But rain produces forests, and "without a certain amount of rain they cannot exist at all."

It is now estimated that of the twenty-two millions of dollars which have been appropriated from first to last for the construction of the East river bridge about fourteen millions have been clear steal. Only one-fifth of the entire amount appropriated and used can be accounted for in materials. When the payments for labor and land damages have been added there is still left an enormous deficit. The World is investigating the manner in which this money has been spent and finds overwhelming evidence that the "bridge ring" are guilty of systematic jobbery and corruption.

H. W. S.

If THE OREGONIAN, by opposition to J. H. Mitchell, has made friends for him, why are not his supporters well satisfied with its course? The organs say, "If anything could elect Mitchell, it is the articles of THE OREGONIAN." Yet the organs are furious with denunciations and abuse of the journal which is doing them so great a service. Possibly, however, the new exposure by the THE OREGONIAN of his history and character has not materially helped him after all.

The Pall Mall Gazette thinks Mr. Gladstone's policy in Egypt will be, not one of absorption, but "the establishment of Egypt as an Oriental Belgium"—a country where the government cannot move without the consent of United Europe. Well, Belgium is one of the quietest countries in the world, at all events.

H. W. S.

To what purpose was J. H. Mitchell called before the committee of investigation? Was he expected to tell the committee that he had been engaged in bribery? The net result was the denial that was to have been expected. But what does that settle or establish?

The boarding houses and gin mills of the city of Salem have an interest in promoting the dead lock on the senatorial question.

DIED.

At the Good Samaritan hospital, Oct. 1st, at 5:30 P. M., O. F. Redlich, in the 47th year of his age. Funeral will take place from the Masonic Temple, under the auspices of the Masonic fraternity, on Tuesday, at 2:30 P. M.

In Astoria, Or., Sept. 28, 1882, at 1:30 P. M., of congestion of the brain, Curtis Coon, only child of T. R. and D. M. Coon, aged 7 years, 3 months and 3 days. A beautiful, gifted little girl she was, most dear and lovely in her brief but precious life. Through six weary months of weakness and suffering, she manifested more than mortal sweetness and patience, but she is gone to a land where she shall never more say "I am so tired."

The living are the only dead;
The dead live, never more to die;
And often when we mourn them fled,
They never were so nigh.

The joys we lose are but forecast,
And we shall find them all once more;
We look behind us for the past,
But, lo! 'Tis all before!

SALEM SCINTILLATIONS.

What the "Visiting Statesmen" Think of the Impending Crisis.

Wanted: Three or four more [illegible], for which cash on delivery will be paid. Apply to me at the Chemeketa Hotel.—The Last of the [illegible].

It is a great thing to be a king, but greater to be a king maker, like Warwick of old. I neither have Mitchell elected by Monday at noon, or I'll eat [illegible] growing in the streets of Salem.—Rufus [illegible].

There goes that man Sap[illegible]. What the d[illegible] is his name anyhow? Well, never mind, he's the thirteenth man. I have promised to make collector of Portland. I can't member him by that.—The Man of Many Names.

What an infernal fool that old Bad Ford was to try and buy Nichols' vote for our noble candidate! Why didn't he do as I did with Curtis, nominate some man that would sell out before election?—[illegible].

Just think what would become of [illegible] if some other man was to get to be the postmaster. If Skinner's Butte was to fall on and bury the town, it wouldn't be half as big a Kalamaty.—[illegible].

Next to our beloved Mitchell, the greatest of all American statesmen, was Rev. Petroleum V. Nasby. He it was who first uttered that sublime sentence, "Postoffices are the issue." I bow to the majesty of his superior wisdom.—George Alphonse Steel.

How unkind it is of these bolt-out republicans not to come into the fold when "Gov." Daniels and I have gone to all the trouble of picking out the only fit candidate for senator. We will join in singing Mr. Sankey's hymn of "The Ninety and Nine."—Lorenzo (Alfalfa) Beebe.

Leaves have their time to fall and officers' heads their appointed hour for dropping into the basket. And it is near the first of October. Oh, melancholy coincidence! What if I should be compelled, at this late hour in life, to astonish the people of Oregon by earning an honest living?—Benjamin Simpson.

You ask me to oppose the election of Senator Mitchell? Do you know to whom you are talking, sir? I was his clerk for years, sir, and enjoyed his confidence. And can you ask me, at this late day, to oppose the election of a man whose name I have signed to innumerable bank checks?—Abraham Jeremiah Moses.

This thing of hoeing corn and digging spuds don't set very well on my gizzard, ef you hear me. I want to live in Portland again and sit in the collector's seat once more. It's true the duties of the office were all Greek to me, but it was mighty nice all the same. With Mitchell in the senate, I can soon get it again.—John Kelly.

The session now is wasting fast,
The nineteenth day is gone and past;
And Mitchell's not elected yet,
And grass is getting short, you bet;
For sad is the heart of hope bereft,
And cold is the day when I got left.
—"Gov." Daniels.

I think it a shame the way these obstinate half-breeds are endeavoring to defeat the election of Senator Mitchell. Since the death of Sumner and Fessenden he has been the only man of any legislative ability in the United States senate. Besides, if he should be defeated, I might have to go to work and that's against my principles.—B. Bullfrog Talbot.

[illegible] WALLING.

The lithographer, engraver, steam printer and book [illegible] makes a magnificent display this year. Last [illegible] he had four artists at work at his neatly [illegible], and an eager throng of visitors crowd[illegible] around his stand throughout the entire evening. The different arts represented were lithographing, engraving, crayon work and chromo printing. He has on display a beautiful chromo, representing a view of the city of Portland. This chromo is in seven colors and is as artistically executed as any we have ever seen. During the evening the crayon artist executed a portrait of Mayor Chapman, the excellent finish of which drew forth many landa[illegible] remarks. The samples of his work which he exhibits shows conclusively that Portland can keep fully abreast of the times in the arts of lithographing, crayon work, chromo work, book binding, engraving and artistic printing. Mr. Walling is constantly adding new features to his establishment, and there is nothing in the line of the above arts that he cannot execute in the most artistic manner. His corps of artists number among them the very best in America. Every order is turned out in the best style at rates not exceeding the prices in the older cities of the east. His establishment is located at the corner of First and Ash streets, where all orders will receive prompt attention.

[illegible] MILTNER & CO.

Exhibit the patent lamp-filler, of which we have heard so much of late. Their stand is located on the south side of the main hall, near the center. This lamp filler is a very ingeniously arranged apparatus. It is attached to the can and works on the principle of a force pump. In filling a lamp from one of these cans it is not necessary to move the can or tip it sideways, as usual. But by pressing a hollow tube that runs from the top to the center of the can the oil is forced out through a small pipe which is of sufficient length and so curved that the nozzle is easily placed in the lamp and the lamp is filled in a second of time. Then by moving the central tube upwards from the can every drop of oil is drained from the lamp back into the can again, if so desired. Thus it is seen that the filler will either fill or empty the lamp at one's will. Another good point about this arrangement is, that it is absolutely safe from explosion. By an ingenious arrangement of the pump the gas, which as everyone knows will generate in the cans even from the very best oils, is kept drawn off, which makes it impossible to cause an explosion. Messrs. Miltner & Co. are dealers in all kinds of oils, lubricating and illuminating, and furnish the cans and patent filler attached without extra cost. Their establishment is located at 22 Second street, where anyone can see the lamp filler in operation.

THE IMPROVED ROBBINS' FAMILY WASHER AND BLEACH.

This very excellent washing machine is exhibited in the pavilion by Messrs. Crowley & Co. Their stand is in the main hall, at the west end. Every night at eight o'clock they start the washer, and the operation of cleansing all kinds of fabrics is witnessed by hundreds, all of whom speak highly of its merits.

The principle of the washer is as follows: When in operation it rapidly and continuously forces the soap suds contained in the boiler, from the bottom to the surface, through a tube at the rate of ten gallons per minute, and then drawing it down again through the soiled clothing, which is expanded by the heat, causing it to remove every particle of dirt and leaving the articles, after rinsing, thoroughly cleansed and bleached. It is impossible to tear or wear the fabrics as there is no friction whatever. This washer is highly recommended by the leading papers of the east. All should see it in operation.

THE BANNER APIARY,

Which is situated at Milwaukie, Clackamas county, is represented at the Mechanics Fair this season. J. D. Rusk, the proprietor, has selected a space at the west end of the main hall, near the Third street entrance. He exhibits all the latest improved apparatus for handling bees. Some improved bee hives, samples of honey from his excellently conducted apiary and is on hand every evening at his stand to give all desired information in regard to bee farming. He displays a very neatly contrived hive which is so constructed that a single bee can guard the entrance from robber bees. This is a valuable invention, as it is these robbers which gives the bee men so much trouble. Mr. Rusk is prepared to sell Italian queen bees, the untested at $2 50, the tested queens $3, select tested $5, hybrid $1. He has a very ingeniously constructed cage in which these can be sent by mail and safe arrival guaranteed. He can also send bees by express or guaranteed. His charges are $2 per pound. Simplicity freight. His charges are $2 per pound. Simplicity hive per colony, $17 50; in crates, per colony, $10. All visitors should stop at his stand and examine this very interesting industry.

HOW TO FOLD A LETTER.

To the Editor of the Oregonian.

In using the ordinary 8 by 10 paper, we generally bring the southwest corner up to the northwest, place the edges exactly even, and then run the finger along the equator. Allow me to suggest that the bottom be placed an eighth of an inch short of the top, for convenience in unfolding, of the person receiving the letter. Paper bag men cut a piece out of one side of the bag, at the top, for the merchant's thumb; and why should not correspondents have as good treatment, instead of being obliged to pick at the paper until, under the eyes of waiting spectators, they get St. Vitus' dance. CRICKET MATCH.

Despite the wretched weather on Saturday afternoon the tars turned out in full force for their game against the Portland club. Either the bad weather or the fact of its being the end of the month had its effect upon the Portland turn out, as only eight of the team expected were on the [illegible] and instead [illegible] ten [illegible] and the services of two substitutes were gladly accepted by Portland, one [illegible] the tars, Mr. Whitney, fielding magnificently and saving many runs for his side. With the sides so [illegible] the result was easily anticipated. The weather was most [illegible]like, and the sky [illegible] of water was calculated to dampen the enthusiasm of any eleven except a nautical one. Portland went to the bat first, Warren and Bourne alone reaching [illegible] figures. The last wicket falling for the comparatively small total of 60 runs, but five of which were extras. The blue Jackets followed and showed great improvement upon previous efforts at the bat. Capts. Milne and Fowles and Hale, Cook and Fenton making double figures, and ere the eleventh wicket fell the score had reached 93, or 33 runs to the good. Rain had now commenced in earnest, but it was determined to finish the two innings if possible. Warren and Owen went in to retrieve the fortunes of the Portland team, and ere Fenton got in on Owens, stumps it had been scored. Gilman followed, and for a time things looked well for the home team, but the ground had become a [illegible]. Sneakers were prevalent, and the remaining wickets made no stand, Warren alone distinguishing himself by a cold hot 36. The mariners called for 70, leaving the tars 37 to get to win, which they accomplished for the loss of three wickets, thus winning by seven wickets. To the superiority of the sailors' fielding, as much as to the absence of some of the best of the Portland eleven, may be attributed this result. We deprecate the leaving of the game unfinished by several of the Portland team after they had enjoyed their two innings at the bat. Such action by older members of the club cannot fail of having a demoralizing effect on the younger players and is disrespectful to the opposing club. It is to be hoped if the weather permits and a return game takes place, that our local club will turn out in full force and reverse the appended result.

Annexation of Northern Idaho to Washington.

The feeling in favor of the annexation of North Idaho to Washington territory is very strong, in fact the people in the four counties were almost a unit in favor of the movement. The editor of the Lewiston Teller has been out on a tour of observation and sums up as follows:

We have traveled as far north as Cabinet Landing, and talked much with settlers on both sides of the boundary between Idaho and Washington, and have found but two men who expressed themselves as opposed to annexation of North Idaho to Washington, and the reasons assigned by these men were a little party jealousy that Washington might gobble some of the individual patronage and business which they now personally enjoyed. In many instances we found men all along the line who expressed the warmest enthusiasm in favor of the measure, while others, new comers in the territory of Idaho, were but little advised upon the question, though they gave it as their opinion frankly, that from all they knew and could understand of the situation, North Idaho should become a part of Washington.

A NEW OREGON TOWN.

From the California Grocer.

The little hamlet of Paisley nestles in the quiet of one of Oregon's beautiful valleys, in the southern portion of the state, and about midway between its eastern and western boundaries. It is one of the new creations reclaimed by the hand of progress from the wide dominion of western desolation. But yesterday, and its unbroken area and the silent hush of its uninhabited solitude made it at one with the barren mountain range which forms its southern boundary. To-day it stands a glorious monument in the pathway of progress, upon which are emblazoned new names to be enrolled among those modern heroes, the pioneer pathfinders, who have carried the axe of civilization through the primeval forests of this western hemisphere. Paisley is still upon the threshold of life, but is animated by aspirations worthy of emulation. It was founded in 1879, and has its site in the Chewaucan valley, which has an extreme length of about twelve miles, with an average breadth of six miles. It is abundantly watered by the Chewaucan river, which traverses its entire length running east and west. This river forms a marsh at the lower end of the valley. Paisley has now a population of about 200; it has two general merchandise stores, two blacksmith shops, one excellently furnished and fitted saloon, and a photograph gallery. There are about thirty buildings in the town, all told, chief of which is the town hall; it is a frame building of two stories, 24x50 feet, with a balcony extending along one side and across the front. Stock raising is the principal industry engaging the attention of the inhabitants, although its soil and climate are adapted to the growth of all the cereals, temperate-climate fruits and vegetables of all descriptions. The present price of barley at Paisley is from 1¾ to 2½ cents per pound. An air line from this town one hundred and fifty miles due east would strike the Northern California railroad at or near the town of Roseburg. There is strong hope of a railroad directly through the valley, buoying up the young town, as the projected railroad from Reno, Nevada, to The Dalles, on the Columbia river, has no choice but this route. The climate of the valley is of the eastern type, the four seasons being distinctly marked, and the fall weather, especially, is said to be delightful. The highest and lowest ranges of temperature are given as 95 degrees above zero in summer, and in winter 22 degrees below. By utilizing the water of the river a large amount of land could be reclaimed, which is now barren and worthless. With but little effort the river could be divided, and one-half its supply made to irrigate a body of desert land lying between the river and Summer lake, which is about twelve miles distant; the remaining half could be thrown to the east and south of east, by a ditch around the base of a mountain, and made to irrigate a large amount of rolling land, about twelve miles in length by a width of from one and a half to two miles. By this means also the marsh spoken of would be more completely drained, and could no doubt be also utilized for agricultural purposes. Agricultural college land in and about Paisley is subject to purchase at $2 50 per acre; desert land can be purchased at $1 25 per acre, while land partially improved is worth from $5 to $10 per acre. There are two general stores in the town, one under the firm style of J. P. Cochran & Co., with Wm. F. Man and E. H. Morgan as special partners; the other with George Conn as manager and proprietor. The calling of the town by the same name as the famous lowland manufacturing town of Paisley, Scotland, is merely a coincidence, and must not be taken as a measure of the ambition of the lesser; we trust, however, that it may grow, in its own way, into an importance equal to that of the other. We are reliably informed that the town offers a desirable opening for a good saddler, a boot and shoe maker, and a tinsmith.

NOTICE.

All persons who have ordered pianos and organs of J. H. Robbins & Sons, 229 First street, are asked to be patient, as the unprecedented call for their instruments has entirely cleared their store, and owing to the delay in receiving goods from the manufacturers, it will be several days before orders now on the books can be filled. However all orders will be promptly filled in their regular turn as the instruments are received.

Victoria Notes.

V[illegible], Sept. [illegible].—The Princess and Marquis of Lorne went to New Westminster yesterday, where they were received beneath an arch built with salmon boxes and barrels filled with tins of salmon and was surmounted by a large cougar and trimmed with deer heads. From the roof of the arch were suspended large salmon and sturgeon. It was festooned with fishing nets, and had the following in large letters on each side: "Our Sea Farm," "Natural Resources." From this point to the reception platform the procession passed through the Indian arch, which was tastily decorated, and on it written in Chinook, "Klashow yeam Queen's tenas klootchman." At the platform the princess was received by Mrs. Mayor McInnes, after which the mayor read an address of welcome. The governor-general replied verbally, and expressed his delight with the scenery of Fraser river. At night there was a canoe torchlight procession on the river. The princess returns to Victoria to-day. The marquis has gone to the interior.

The mail steamer G. W. Elder, with the following Victoria passengers, sailed at 2 o'clock this P. M. for San Francisco: B. F. Jones and wife, Miss Scott, Miss N. L. Thorn, Henry Harvey, G. Greenwalt, D. Greenwalt, W. H. Cullen, T. Monroe Smith, Mrs. Charlerton and son, W. Hines, Mrs. Lobbe, Mrs. Huston.

Robert Laing, a resident since 1860, died to-day. In 1864, Laing visited Queen Charlotte's Island to hunt for gold and was made prisoner by the Indians who used him as a slave until the Hudson Bay Co bought his liberty with fifty blankets.

Seattle Notes.

Seattle, Sept. 30.—Coal exports from Seattle during September aggregated 12,358 tons. All went to San Francisco. Thirteen sail vessels in the foreign trade arrived in the district of Puget Sound during the month of September, and ten sailed for foreign ports. Two of the latter took cargoes of wheat comprising 101,339 sacks, valued at $200,000. The other eight took cargoes of lumber aggregating about 6,000,000 feet, valued at $56,098. During the same month the lumber mills of Burrard Inlet, B. C., shipped for foreign ports about 3,500,000 feet, valued at $51,237.

Shingles are in such demand here and have risen so in price that an importation of 250,000 is being made from California, the only importation in at least a quarter of a century.

The police force of this city is to be uniformed, and the common council are now considering the style of uniform to adopt.

BRIBERY INVESTIGATION.

[From the Sunday Oregonian.]

Salem, [illegible]

Committee met at 10 [illegible] who being duly sworn, was examined by [illegible] son as follows:

Thompson—Mitchell, are [illegible] Robert Ford, of Polk county?

Mitchell—I am not. I [illegible] edge, and most certainly I never [illegible] who he was until yesterday [illegible] tion. I never spoke to him [illegible] edge until yesterday when he was [illegible] giving his testimony [illegible] little louder that I might hear what he [illegible] I, of course, have met and been [illegible] to a great many citizens of [illegible] by whose name I could not [illegible] not know if I were to meet [illegible]. It is possible that I may at some time [illegible] been introduced to Ford; but of such I have not the slightest recollection of the fact, and [illegible] who he was till pointed out to me yesterday.

Question—What information [illegible] source, did you have prior to the [illegible] public talk, that Ford was interesting [illegible] election as senator?

Ans.—Last Wednesday, I think, Dr. [illegible] mayor of Portland, and I rode from [illegible] hotel to the capitol together. We separated on our arrival at the capitol. Shortly afterward Dr. Chapman came to me, and with some agitation said, in substance, "I have just seen Dr. Plummer and he (Plummer) informed me that some person had told him (he did not say whom) that somebody [illegible] a corrupt offer of money to some member of the legislature (he didn't say whom) to induce [illegible] for me for senator, and that he (Plummer) [illegible] (Chapman) if that was true (or has words to [illegible] think) if anything of that kind was going on on the part of myself or friends [illegible] ners) did not propose to vote for me any more." I immediately sent for Plummer. He came. I inquired of him what he knew in reference to the matter. He said he had been told by a member of the house that some one, he did not say who, had made a corrupt offer to him. I immediately demanded the name of his informant. He replied in substance, "I will not give you his name, but if he will come with me I will bring the man here to this room to see you." I said bring him in immediately, or words to that effect. He went out of the room, and in a few moments returned accompanied by Mr. Nichols. He introduced me to Nichols as the gentleman who had informed him in reference to the matter. I then demanded to know of Nichols what he knew or had heard. He proceeded to tell me substantially the story he has detailed in evidence, and this was the first information, directly or indirectly, that such a man as Robert Ford had been taking any interest in my affairs as a senatorial candidate. Of course I gave to Nichols in the presence of Drs. Plummer and Chapman an unqualified and emphatic denial not only of any knowledge of any corrupt attempt upon the part of Mr. Ford, but of the existence of such a person. I had no information or knowledge whatever prior to that conversation that Mr. Ford was using any efforts, proper or improper, in my behalf.

Q.—Did you have any knowledge or information prior to that time, that is the time that Dr. Chapman first spoke to you in conversation just related—that any person from Polk county had been solicited to come to Salem to see Mr. Nichols or any of the members of the Polk county delegation?

A.—I had not the slightest. If any person was sent for for the purpose of inducing Nichols or any other member to vote for me, I have no knowledge of it. I know there were a number of gentlemen from Polk county advising with their delegation and endeavoring to influence them that it was their duty to support the nominee of the republican caucus. Quite a number of these gentlemen called on me at different times, and with them the senatorial question was discussed generally, and it is possible the name of Mr. Nichols may have been mentioned, but I have no recollection of the fact now. But I am positive no suggestion was ever made to me by any person in the shape of advising that any person from Polk county or any other place be sent for to speak to Mr. Nichols on that subject.

Jamison—Was it at your suggestion or of your knowledge that Hayden and Watkinds went to Dallas after Ford?

A.—After having talked with Nichols the day before, which was the first information I had of Ford, I made some inquiry as to whether such a gentleman lived in Polk county. My impression is now that Governor Chadwick told me first there was such a gentleman living there. Perhaps others told me. At all events I became satisfied upon inquiry that there was a Robert Ford living at Dallas. I paid no further attention to the matter that day, and made no effort whatever to see Ford, or to have anybody else see him. The next day (Thursday, I believe) on receipt of THE OREGONIAN, which I received at the capitol at nearly 11:30, on reading the Salem correspondence in that issue referring to this alleged attempt at bribery, I immediately sent a message to the house of representatives requesting Dr. Plummer and three or four other of my friends to come to the committee room, where I was. While the messenger was gone I wrote the resolution demanding an investigation. On Dr. Plummer coming to my room a few minutes afterward, in company with three or four other representatives, I handed him the resolution, which I had then completed, and requested him to present it immediately in the house, and accompany it with the statement, if he would, that the resolution was in my own handwriting; that I unqualifiedly denied any knowledge or participation in any corrupt attempt in my interest, and that I demanded the fullest investigation. I then left the capitol, went to the Chemeketa hotel with the purpose of finding some person who knew Robert Ford, and who would be willing to go to Dallas to bring him before the investigating committee, which I expected would hold a session that evening, as I was fearful if the matter was delayed until the committee would meet and organize, and a subpoena should issue, that the proceedings would be delayed, which I was earnestly desirous of avoiding. On getting to the hotel, I met Governor Chadwick and inquired of him if he knew any good person in town who might be willing to go and bring him before the committee that night. He mentioned two names. One was Mr. Holmes, who, I believe, is prosecuting attorney here, and the other was Judge Hayden. I said to Gov. Chadwick, "Tell Holmes, if you see him, that I would be pleased to see him at the hotel, if convenient." He said he would do so. I separated from him in the hall of the hotel, and in less than five minutes I accidentally met Judge Hayden. I asked him if he knew Bob Ford, of Dallas. He said he did. I told him of the resolution of investigation, and that I presumed the committee would meet that evening; that I was anxious to get the facts of the case at the earliest moment, and I asked him if he would be willing to get a carriage and go to Dallas and [illegible] Mr. Ford and bring him to the capitol by eight that evening, so that he might be examined before the investigating committee. He said he would do so, but would like to get somebody to go with him. I told him, "All right," to get anybody he pleased, or words to that effect. We separated then for a few minutes. He sent for a carriage, and within five minutes after the first conversation with Hayden, he said he had seen Bill Watkinds and he was going with him. In fact, he brought Watkinds to me in the hall of the hotel, and said he was going with him. On his return from Dallas, without Ford, he informed me he had tried his best to induce Ford to accompany him before the investigating committee, but he (Ford) had peremptorily declined to come unless subpoenaed, but stated to him (Hayden) in the presence of three or four other gentlemen, Mr. Ellis, I think, and Mr. Richmond and Mr. Watkinds, that he was willing to give a statement which they could take to the committee, which he did, and in which he denied positively having made any corrupt offer to Nichols, and in which he also denied knowing me. The statement was attested by Messrs. Ellis, and Richmond, and is in the following words:

[Here statement which was published yesterday, was here copied in, the original of which was attached yesterday as an exhibit to Ford's testimony.]

Judge Hayden also informed me on his return that Mr. Ford told him and the other gentlemen that if the committee desired his presence before them and would send a subpena, he could be found at his home in Dallas. I think he complained of being unwell.

This ended the examination of Mitchell.

Nichols was here recalled by Mr. Thompson.

Thompson—Yesterday when Mr. Robert Ford was on the witness stand after giving his version of the conversation between himself and you in the hall of the house of representatives on Wednesday, he closed by saying "Frank, that is all a joke." Did or did not Mr. Ford use that language, or any language upon that subject?

Nichols—He most certainly did not.

Q.—What was the nature of that conversation with reference to its being serious and in earnest?

A.—Mr. Ford on that occasion talked and acted as though he was in earnest. At any rate I believed him to be in earnest, and do yet.

Q.—Have you had sufficient acquaintance with Ford to be enabled to tell when he is in earnest and when he is joking?

A.—I think I have.

Q.—If there is any other matter in Mr. Ford's testimony concerning which you desire to make any personal explanation please do so without further question.

A.—I did not hear all of Mr. Ford's testimony. I was out of the room part of the time. The conversation, however, as detailed by Ford, which took place in the hall, was not fully stated by him. He stated very little of it.

Mitchell—Mr. Nichols, in 1872, when Mr. Corbett and myself were candidates for the United States senate, were you in the lobby at Salem, laboring persistently and earnestly to defeat my election, after I had received the caucus nomination?

Committee decided the question irrelevant, but said Nichols could answer the question if he wanted to.

Mitchell withdrew the question in order to save time.

Thompson said there was plenty of time, but Mitchell said: "Never mind."

This closed the testimony and counsel submitted the case.

Committee here adjourned till 11 o'clock, Monday.

An Eye to Business.

There is nothing like having an eye to business in every event of life, even in a duel. So at least thinks General "Abe" Buford, the apostle of the church and turf, who has started a paper called Turf, Rod and Gun, devoted to his peculiar doctrines. To him said the Rev. Green Clay Smith, at Blue Lick Springs the other day: "General, I want to challenge you." "Me, sir?" cried Buford; "that is not the proper way to deliver such a message, sir." "Ah, you mistake. I want to challenge you to a discussion of the church and turf." "How?" "Choose your own weapons; but I prefer through some newspaper." "All right," rejoined the veteran sportsman; "it shall be through Turf, Rod and Gun. Have a card? Only $2 a year."

JUNIPERO SERRA.

Within the ruined church at Carmel's bay,
Beside the altar, with rank weeds o'ergrown,
There is a grave unmarked with slab or stone,
Where lies one who, lost sight of in our day,
Abides his time; and when have passed away
And would-be heroes, he will then be known,
Our glory's heritage at last will own.
His title to which no one will gainsay.
When life was nearing to an end 'twas here,
Seeking repose, the Padre Serra came;
Of our fair land he was the pioneer,
And if the good alone were known to fame,
Within our hearts his memory would be dear
And on our lips a household word his name.

[illegible] Sept. 29.—The wholesale trade of the [illegible] the past week has been in a very active [illegible]. The weather has been pleasant [illegible] Leather is in a fair request, and [illegible] boots and shoes, clothing [illegible] Hides are quiet. Green fruits and vegetables in good request. Receipts of timothy [illegible] large and at easier prices.

[illegible] investment market business is [illegible] stocks and securities rather [illegible] between banks, forty or 50 [illegible] bankers without exception [illegible] tendency to borrow; rates of interest [illegible] per cent.; interior orders for currency [illegible] clearings of associated banks for five [illegible] week aggregate $39,[illegible],000.

[illegible] grain and provisions there was a general tendency the first part of the week downward, but the [illegible] owing to the near approach of settling [illegible] have showed a general tendency to cover [illegible] decline was more than recovered by [illegible] yesterday and to-day, except in corn, which shows a persistent downward tendency. The [illegible] of the board of trade in the injunction [illegible] in the matter of the July wheat settlements, [illegible] to have had some effect on the market yesterday and to-day, as the course of the arguments inclined to the inference that the decision of the committee, in fixing prices nearly at a top notch, would be sustained by the court on the ground that the board is a judge of its own rules. In dealings to-day there is a general tendency of shorts to cover September trades. As a result of active competition, regular wheat advanced 1@1¼c over yesterday's figures, and closed 1c higher for options referred. Futures were fairly active at 1@[illegible] higher, then weakened, declined 1@1¼c, closed [illegible] higher; October is ⅛c higher now than yesterday's closing figures. Sales ranged $1 07⅛@1 0[illegible] September, 92⅞@94⅛c October, 93⅞@94⅛c November, [illegible]@97⅞c year, 97⅜@97⅞c May, winter and spring; at 05@1 06 on call. Sales 300,000 bushels regular, 45,000 winter, 5000 spring, with September and [illegible] deferred options, ⅛@⅜c lower.

Corn showed an unsettled feeling; early in the day it advanced 1@1⅛c over yesterday; at the close it declined 2¾c Oct., 2c Nov., 1⅜c year; closed lower except the year, which was ⅛ lower. Sales ranged 58⅜@61½ Sept., 55⅞@61 Oct., 57⅞@59⅞ Nov., 53⅜@54⅞ year; 41⅞@50 Jan., 51@52⅜ May. On call, sales were 1,200,000 at ⅛@⅜ lower except the year, which was ⅛c higher.

Oats opened higher but declined with the break in corn. Sales ranged 31½@31⅞ Sept., 31@31⅞ Oct., 3[illegible]@32¼ Nov., 31@31⅞ year; 33⅛@43⅜ May. On call, sales were 75,000 at ⅛c lower.

Lard is higher, the gain on October being 12½ on deferred futures 12½@15. Sales ranged 12 00@12 27½ Oct., 11 20@12 40 Nov., 11 52½@11 60 year, 11 82½@11 40 Jan., 11 37½@11 40 May. On call sales were 8500 at 2½@5c lower.

Chicago Wheat Market.

Chicago, Sept. 29.—Wheat higher; regular; $1 06 September; 93½ cts., October, 93 cts., November; spring and winter, $1 06.

The Eastern Freight Market.

New York, Sept. 29.—Although the freight market is very quiet and all prospects are against any activity this season, tonnage movements seem to be more than equal to that of last year, which was considered rather a prosperous one for clipper lines. Movement the past month has averaged six vessels registering 6813 tons against four vessels of 6520 tons in the corresponding month of last year. Total movement for the past nine months foots up 53 vessels registering 86,352 tons against 47 vessels of 74,034 tons in the corresponding period of last year, an increase of six vessels or nearly eleven thousand registered tons, quite an amount when the opposition of railways is considered and the fact that this is an off year. Tonnage on berth and controlled for the trade foots up quite a respectable amount, although the bulk of it will not be available for thirty days at least, and in the mean time it may be necessary to take other vessels. The total amounts to 11 vessels, registering in the aggregate nearly 19,550 tons. Of these it is probable that but four will get away next month, which will be as well as was done the same month last year. The market remains quiet although the weather has become settled. The A. J. Fuller has cleared, but will not finish for several days. Lucile will finish next week, probably.

Freights at Philadelphia are rather slow and the Standard makes slow progress.

At Boston clipper freights are dull. The Enos Soule is better than half loaded, but it will be some days before her cargo is completed. Overland freight at Boston was fairly active in shipments the past week, including 1369 packages tea, 425 cases canned goods, 100 cases oil, 15 barrels starch, 175 boxes herring fish, 503 boxes candles, 36 cases tobacco, 135 cases canned fish.

Portland freights are moderately active and both the Imperial and Harry Morse are doing fairly. Among the late freight engagements are several lots of agricultural goods.

Isthmus freights remain as usual. The steamer hence to-day for San Francisco has 502 barrels rosin, 150 boxes tin plates, 285 kegs nails.

At New York, the great storm of last week has continued, and although not so severe has been sufficiently so as to render movement at the wharves of California ships very slow, and although the A. J. Fuller will clear, she will not finish loading for several days. However, when the storm has passed away the market may for a few days be more lively, thus filling up the Fuller and Lucile. Offerings are not very brisk and are chiefly of raw material, the proportion of manufactured goods being rather small for the season. Shipments of petroleum have nearly ceased and those of railroad iron have also fallen off. It is now known that there will be no agricultural goods forwarded by clipper ship to San Francisco this season, the last one of the large shippers having made contracts.

New York Wool Market.

New York, Sept. 29.—The wool market is quiet and firm; prices well sustained. Sales of the week, 2,700,000 pounds. The fleeces are in active request; coarse and medium also in demand. Sales of Ohio and Pennsylvania fleeces at 41@43 cts. for X, 42½@44 cts. for XX; 45 cts. for XXX. Choice XX Ohio fleeces are held firm at 44 cts. and upwards. In Michigan fleeces, sales were at 30½@40 cts. for X, and 41 cts. for XX, but transactions have not been of any extent. Unwashed fleeces have been in demand at 19@21 cts. for low and coarse, 25@35 for fine and medium, including choice selections. Combing and delaine selections have been in demand, with sales at 44@45 cts. For fine delaine, 47—50, and also for No. 1 combing. Unwashed combing selling at 23 cents for coarse, up to 30@38 cts for better grades. California wool continues quiet, with sales at 22½@23 cts. for spring. Supers have been sold at 46@50 cts; common and good 28@40 cts. Foreign wool is quiet with small sales of Australian, Montevideo and Mediterranean carpet.

The Charter Market.

San Francisco, Sept. 29.—The Commercial News has the following review of the charter market: The English market is going from bad to worse, and freights have continued weak throughout, with at times slight improvement in inquiry which led to a hope of increased activity. The arrival of a number of deep-water vessels, and the failure of a firm of bulling brokers who had been speculating in wheat, and a depression in wheat abroad, all tended to weaken the market at the close. Iron vessels have held up remarkably well under the circumstances, and it seems as though the bottom had been reached for that class of tonnage, as rates have been maintained in the face of the fact that first-class wooden ships have been offered at lower rates relatively than iron has been fixed at. In addition to the charters reported below, it was rumored on the street that a British iron vessel had been chartered at £2 5s, but the report lacked confirmation. There is a heavy amount of tonnage on hand, and without improvement abroad, a change for the better can hardly be expected for the present. The latest charter is the British bark Alpheta, 939 tons, flour to Cork, U. K., £2, 6s, 3d.

A traveler reports a clever repartee in the cathedral at Santa Fe. Several aged Mexican women were kneeling on the bare floor, muttering in prayer. "Well," said a backwoodsman, "don't that beat the devil?" "I guess that's what they're trying to do," was the quiet reply of a companion.

There is a charming story told [illegible] of a poor woman who, when one of his curates pointed out that Providence had been, on the whole, very good to her, replied, "Oh, aye; he 'ave, mostly; I [illegible] deny it; but I sometimes think he 'ave taken it out of me [illegible]"

THIRD DAY OF THE FALL RACES AT EAST PORTLAND.

Dexter Wins the Time Trot.

[From the Sunday Oregonian.]

There were about [illegible] people at the [illegible] Saturday [illegible] and [illegible] during the fore part of the [illegible] and there was nothing to hinder a horse from [illegible] The track had been [illegible] the managers gave a purse of $[illegible] for the trotter, who [illegible] not so. The two entries [illegible]

[illegible]

Were [illegible] trot separately, which was a [illegible] advantage to each horse, for it enabled him to [illegible] a great deal steadier than [illegible] the side of him to urge him to a break. The rain began to fall as the horses got up to the track and it prevented the track from [illegible] freely. Dexter came up for the work, looking better than anybody ever saw him. Smiley [illegible] in front of him and in [illegible] at the word, taking the bit in his teeth and going off as smoothly as a newly oiled engine. He rounded the first turn, always a bad one for a long strider, without a skip, and when he struck the back stretch he opened out into a splendid burst of speed, passing the half-mile in 1:11. Miller held him steady for his work around the turn, and when he entered the home stretch he rallied him for a final rally, and the big horse went under the wire in 2:34½, which is

THE BEST TIME

Ever made in Oregon by horse, mare or gelding. This also places Dexter at the head of the whole Belmounder family, as none other has a better record than 2:36. Milton Medium now came up for a shy at the prize, driven by Harry Smiley. As he warmed up, it was evident that it was an off day with the little horse, and bets of 2 to 1 were freely offered that he would not beat Dexter's time. At last he came up for the word and went off at such a clip that he could not stay the pace, but broke repeatedly during the mile, which he made in 2:39¾. Smiley was offered another trial at the figures, but declined it on the ground that his horse was not at himself and he didn't want to distress him with a hard drive to no purpose. The running race for the day had not filled and the managers felt it their duty to get up some extra attraction.

THE SECOND RACE

Was gotten up for an extra purse, to go to the winning horse only. There were three entries—Peter Emerson's b. m. Florence E., Charles Russell's ch. g. Tempest and James W. Foster's b. m. Belle Foster. The latter started off favorite in the pools, bringing nearly as much as the other two, but there came a sudden reaction in favor of Florence, who was a favorite when they started off for the first heat, which she won, with plenty to spare, in 2:39. The next heat she jogged in 2:35½, the track in the meantime having become heavy from falling rain. The third heat Smiley gave to Belle Foster, to enable some of his friends to help out, but it showed out too plainly. The fourth heat was won by Florence in 2:46, Tempest being third throughout the entire race. What a change from the grand three-year-old of 1879 who could trot faster then than he can to-day.

THE WINNER OF THE RACE

Is one of the few real stub-and-twist trotters bred in the Willamette valley and is owned by Emerson, the restaurant-keeper of Salem. She is by old Pathfinder, her dam by the once famous running horse Jack Minor, now dead. She is a bigger mare than would first appear to the eye, although she stands a trifle below fifteen and a half hands high. Her propelling power is unusually good and her bellows a tint of blowing out quickly after a hard heat. She has a low and easy way of going, which is in pleasing contrast to most of the hobbling in front and galloping behind that has been palmed off for trotting during the past two years. Everybody who saw her in the race yesterday was satisfied it was no criterion of her powers; and we are satisfied she will explore the twenties before the close of next year. She has a good stroke and catches easily from a break, thus being a good horse to trot in a large field.

SUMMARY OF THE RACE:

Purse of $75 for named horses. Mile heats, 3 in 5.
P. Emerson's b m Florence E	1	1	2	1
J. Foster's b m Belle Foster	2	2	1	2
T. Russell's ch g Tempest	3	3	3	3

Time: 2:39—2:35½—2:35½—2:46.

The winner had been worked but sixteen days when she trotted this race, and here we are at the end of the season. Had she been worked six weeks we should regard her as a very dangerous horse to tackle with either Goldfield or Johnny Blue, which trotted such a severe race against Walla Walla Maid on Thursday. She is a square trotter, which is something of an oddity in these days, and in the hands of a competent trainer she would make an excellent campaigner. This race excludes her from the 2:40 class next year, but she will be troublesome every bet—with that figure. Belle Foster has been a great mare in her day, but seems to have lost that wonderful slee way of going that characterized her five-year-old form.

ALBINA HOMESTEAD

THE ALBINA HOMESTEAD, of which the above is a complete plat, is situated next to Albina, and between and fronting on both the extension of Fourth street, East Portland, and the Vancouver road. All the lots in Blocks 26, 27, 28, 29 and 30 are 50x120 feet, with twenty-foot alleys through the blocks. All the other lots are 50x100 feet. The streets are wide and have all been cleared, while the lots are high and level and can be very easily cleared.

We now offer for sale for a short time a limited number of these Lots and Blocks at reasonable prices and on easy terms.

THE ALBINA HOMESTEAD is unquestionably the best field for investment and the most desirable place for location now in the market. Its close proximity to the cities of Portland and East Portland, and to the heavy improvements now being carried out by the various companies under the direction of Mr. Villard—the Dry Docks, Elevators, Machine Shops and other works of these companies—its nearness also to the Albina Ferry, together with the proposed Street Railway from L Street Ferry, in East Portland, will make this property very accessible from all parts of these cities. These advantages will necessarily attract a large population, and in the meantime make this the most popular and valuable suburban property in this vicinity, while in the near future it must furnish homes for the rapidly increasing population of Albina, and then its value will be at least five times what we now offer it for. We will show the property and give full information to all who may apply to us personally, and inquiries addressed to us by mail will receive prompt attention.

FRANCE WANTS PEACE.

Contemporary Review.

A peaceful policy is the very condition of the continued existence of the French republic. Military enterprises of a country with institutions not yet firmly grounded are apt, if successful, to throw the national power into the hands of one man. In case of defeat they bring about a political collapse. The French army, it must not be forgotten, still contains in its higher grades a great many Bonapartists and Royalists. Thanks to the neglect of public instruction under successive imperial and kingly governments, the mass of the privates, drawn from a peasantry which forms the bulk of the nation, are still so far from the simplest rudiments of knowledge that in times of a great crisis they, too, constitute a danger to a free commonwealth. It is only now that France—in consequence of a very wise and excellent law on public instruction, recently enacted by the present parliament—has a fair chance of emerging from [illegible] educational backwardness. As regards the agricultural classes, which few suspect who are not acquainted with the statistical "Map of Intellect," constructed at the time of M. Duruy, the minister of public instruction under Napoleon III., afforded the most glaring evidence. While in the French departments near the Swiss, German and Belgian frontiers there were only between 2.25 and 3.11 per cent. of the population unable to read and write the proportion rose in Corsica to [illegible]; in the Vendee to 61.10; [illegible] as 60 per cent.; in [illegible] other provinces as high as 70, and even [illegible] per cent. Now, in a country with a vast army of well-nigh a million and a half of men, composed, on the system of compulsory service, of a large number of unlettered peasants, [illegible] a condition involves, during civil struggles, an extraordinary peril indeed. Unscrupulous [illegible] of a despotic turn readily make [illegible] so formidable a machinery. Under [illegible] MacMahon the danger was very near. [illegible] what I know to be a fact, [illegible] that the first warning revelation as [illegible] MacMahon's criminal intentions was conveyed to a well-known French republican leader by a German friend in England. This [illegible] some time before a French officer [illegible] the coup d'etat of May 16 by [illegible] his sword, instead of obeying the order [illegible] to him by his superiors. Some [illegible] must not be forgotten in [illegible] with the prospects of French freedom. The "republic" of 1870 was only provisional by the headings given to the [illegible] of the provisional government of national [illegible] in consequence of a defeat of [illegible]. It was not the result of a [illegible]. Victorious, Napoleon III. [illegible] fortified in his tenure of power. [illegible] overthrown because [illegible] defeated. For some time afterwards the [illegible] constitution of France trembled in the parliamentary balance. Finally [illegible] was formally established by [illegible] of one! Even this snap-vote was [illegible] because the royalist pretender, [illegible] whom the very princes of the [illegible] house of Orleans had declared adhesion, insisted, with bigoted [illegible] on the white flag and other [illegible] "right divine." Many [illegible] that sanguinary contests of [illegible] would have to be gone [illegible] programme were adopted. [illegible] much wavering in the assembly. Yet with all this hesitation [illegible] of royalists, the republican [illegible] only triumphed by a single [illegible].

[illegible] to a green old age.

[illegible] Dr. Holland, he [illegible] to be demonstrably true [illegible] which comes to any [illegible] of poverty is the greatest. [illegible] has ever yet been satisfied [illegible].

[illegible] within bounds to say [illegible] quarter of our population is [illegible] by the preaching of the [illegible] hour; and that this proportion [illegible] be largely augmented as the [illegible]. The fallacy of this assumed [illegible] and efficiency of the pulpit [illegible] established by the rapid [illegible] Christian missions. There [illegible] of converts, to Christ[illegible] heathen lands whose [illegible] is owing mainly to [illegible] the missionary is above all [illegible]. This was the method used [illegible] in the propagation of the [illegible], and there has been no change [illegible] as we believe any diminution [illegible] under God to convert and [illegible] men from that day to this.—

[illegible] need to remember that there can [illegible] prosperity without care and [illegible]. We are not to wait with indifference [illegible] which shall elevate and [illegible] must try to do the will of [illegible] influences which may help us [illegible] does a plant, but [illegible] too soon, or too earnestly realize [illegible] of responsibilities. The will [illegible] of His people, and [illegible] best promoted as they [illegible] His will, as it is presented in His [illegible] is nothing much easier than [illegible] bemoaning our frailties [illegible] expressing desires for more [illegible] and making no effort to attain [illegible] of Christian professors [illegible] meetings have chronic [illegible], but they make no [illegible] the better career which [illegible] desirable. How well would [illegible] would do instead of talk.

[illegible] OF MARRIAGE.

[illegible] as Hard as the Husband [illegible] in which her Expenditures [illegible] Viewed.

[illegible] in the Woman's Journal. [illegible] that the life-work of a wife [illegible] as that of her husband [illegible] if she does her duty to her [illegible] no time to study metaphysics [illegible] into a ballot-box. I think it [illegible] Dr. Edward H. Clarke who [illegible] the mother of a family [illegible] of brain and body as those of [illegible]. Grant it all; grant that she [illegible] her husband does. If so, the inference [illegible] that she can earn her share of [illegible]. The fact that he receives the [illegible] bills makes him the treasurer [illegible] that is all—and he has no more right [illegible] to take airs upon himself [illegible] when he pays out money to her [illegible] but as earnings.

[illegible] the money all came as her dowry to [illegible] in many other cases she does her full [illegible] direct earning of the income. As a [illegible] and women who sing in [illegible] families, including their husbands [illegible] New England farming regions the [illegible] only as hard as the husband's but [illegible] share of the direct money getting [illegible]. For farming in New England, [illegible] comfortable support, yields but little [illegible] money; and in many cases the [illegible] actual cash receipts during the [illegible] comes through the energy of the [illegible] boarders. In a farm house near [illegible] a cook is hired at $4 a week [illegible] season lasts, and a second girl at [illegible] farm house near by, the young [illegible] does all this work herself, with [illegible] a little girl of 12; and she does it as [illegible] as many boarders. Considering [illegible] she saves, her work is worth near[illegible] a day; and considering the profits she [illegible] establishment, it is worth nearly three [illegible]. Yet probably the payment is generally [illegible] her husband as treasurer, and whatever she spends would be regarded by the [illegible] "given" her by him. And if the farm [illegible] by their joint accumulations, the neighbors [illegible] consider—and indeed the law would [illegible] paid for by him, and belonged to [illegible].

[illegible] perfectly willing to admit in a majority of [illegible] whole matter settles itself; but there is a [illegible] of cases where the wife is kept during [illegible] life in a false position from a false [illegible] of treasurership. There are no doubt cases [illegible] a great fortune, while his wife's [illegible] that of a butterfly. These cases are [illegible] one family with another, the wife works [illegible] the husband; and the fact that his share [illegible] handling of the money does not make [illegible]. It belongs to both; and what he pays [illegible] is not a gift but a matter of right. [illegible] present from my wife," said a rich [illegible] an ornament. "Bought with your [illegible]" friend jocosely. "No!" he said, "out [illegible] hard earnings. She keeps house for a [illegible] acquaintance."

Bunyan Not a Gypsy.

"Was Bunyan a gypsy?" is a controversy that [illegible] to rise in the Daily News, and has [illegible] forth a letter to-day from Mr. Thomas Bunyan, chief warder of the Tower of London, full of [illegible] appalling erudition on the subject. The [illegible] were not gypsies; they are one of the "first [illegible]" of Roxburghshire, and, though they did not come over with the conqueror, they came over soon after him. The original Bunyan, whose [illegible] perhaps Bunyano, was perhaps an Italian [illegible] who came over and helped to build Melrose Abbey in 1136; he settled near Melrose, and Melrose [illegible] full of Bunyans. The chief warder goes on to [illegible] that the younger sons no doubt went to England, [illegible] probably were the ancestors of the great Bunyan of Bedford; and, moreover, the sturdy independence of Bunyan shows at once that he could not have been a submissive Bedford peasant."—Pall Mall Gazette.

[illegible] that the Worcesters proposed [illegible] without completing their schedule. Worcester having concluded, however, to play its score out the championship has been decided in the [illegible] in favor of the Chicagos and further games are [illegible].

[illegible] "If Mr. Tennyson were to go [illegible] newspaper waste-basket and attach his [illegible] the original poetry he should find in it, [illegible] be read, admired and paid.

Piratical Origin of a Navy.

Gentleman's Magazine.

The piratical origin of the navies of Europe sufficiently explains the fact that plunder, which is less the rule than an incident of war on land, retains its chief object and feature at sea. The fact may further be explained by the survival of piracy that was long sanctioned by the state under the guise of privateering. If we would understand the popularity of wars in England in the old privateering days, we must recall the [illegible] £2,000,000. We now begin to see why our forefathers rang their church bells at the announcement of war, as they did at the declaration of this one against Spain. War represented to large classes what the gold mines of Peru represented to Spain—the best of all pecuniary speculations. In the year 1747 alone the English ships took 644 prizes and of what enormous value they often were! Here is a list of the values which the cargoes of these prizes not unfrequently reached: That of the Heron, a French ship, £140,000; that of the Conception, a French ship £200,000; that of La Charmante, a French East Indiaman, £200,000; that of the Vestal, a Spanish ship, £140,000, that of the Hector, a Spanish ship, £300,000; that of the Concordia, a Spanish ship, £600,000. Two Spanish register ships are recorded to have brought in £850 to every foremast man who took part in their capture. In 1745 three Spanish vessels returning from Peru, having been captured by three privateersmen, the owners of the latter received to their separate shares the sum of £700,000, and every common seaman £860. Another Spanish galleon was taken by a British man-of-war with £1,000,000 of bullion on board.

What England has Done for India.

Contemporary Review.

England has converted an immense amount of jungle land into fertile land; she has drained malarious swamps; joined the interior to the seaboard by railways; spanned great rivers; constructed canals; irrigated barren lands; made native races live peaceably; stopped the raids of Afghans, Persians and Tartars; put down predatory castes; substituted justice for oppression, police for soldiers, schools for idolatrous temples. She has further erected great trading cities, introduced manufactures, opened mines, made a beginning in teaching the people, and revived the literature of the country. Five thousand native books were published in India in the year 1878, and there are 250 native journals. The family life of the Hindoo has been touched by the modern intellectual movement; there are some signs of an uprising from the degradation of the Zenana; and the establishment of municipalities on the ruins of the old village guilds points to the awakening of a new political life. There is, however, a great deal yet to be done. India is in parts overpopulated: irrigation must be extended; there must be an equitable land law; and we must consider, in whatever we undertake, the fact of the frightful poverty of the vast majority of the people.

TO THE PUBLIC.

It is generally conceded that the enterprise began in this city about five years ago, and known as the FARMERS AND MECHANICS' STORE, has met with a success unparalleled in the mercantile history of this State, and almost prodigious in its nature.

The cause underlying this success is not questioned any longer. It is simply this: The people of Oregon having for so long a time been the victims of grasping and unscrupulous dealers, having for so many years been ground under the iron heel of an avaricious guild, have at last had their eyes opened to the fact that their dollar, no less than anybody else's, is worth one hundred cents, and ought, by right, purchase as much as if in the hands of the merchant.

To the FARMERS AND MECHANICS' STORE is due the credit of having released the people from the oppressive yoke, of having redeemed them from their thraldom, and of having enlightened them upon a point so vital to their prosperity. This vexes those merchants who are unable to keep pace with the march of time, who are loth to accommodate themselves to smaller profits, and who never forget anything, because they never learn anything, and they cannot help themselves. They are spotted; the people have put the mark on them, while the FARMERS AND MECHANICS' STORE has become the household word in every family in the State, and is to them synonymous with honesty, integrity and fair dealing.

To take advantage of the fair fame of which the FARMERS AND MECHANICS' STORE has a right to boast, is something from which their competitors do not shrink. Their sense of honor does not deter them from stooping so low, and consequently it often occurs that when a party, for the first time in this city, happens to fall in their clutches, he is made to believe, when asking for the FARMERS AND MECHANICS' STORE, that he is just in the place he is looking for. By every device, chicanery and false representation he is thus deceived. This has occurred so often that the undersigned, proprietor of the above mentioned place, finds himself compelled to notify those who have so long subsisted upon this disreputable practice, that unless they cease their tactics, he will, though reluctantly, seek redress through the proper channel. He has, in accordance with the provisions of the law of the State, delivered to and had recorded in the office of the Secretary of State, the words "FARMERS AND MECHANICS' STORE," as a TRADE MARK, to be used as a sign and designation to his store. The undersigned does not propose to submit to an infringement upon his rights any longer. He is not for a moment so philanthropic as to quietly allow others to reap the benefit of his labor, and, above all, suffer his customers to be thus imposed upon. He therefore again warns and notifies all persons so using his Trade Mark in the future, that he will hold them strictly responsible for the same and prosecute them to the extent of the law, which provides as follows:

"Any person, partnership, firm or corporation that shall use, or cause to be used, any name, mark, brand, designation or description, the same as or SIMILAR to one so secured or recorded, for the purpose of deception or profit, shall forfeit to the use of the owner of the name, mark or brand, designation or description, so taken or imitated, one-half of the property, goods or articles of trade upon which the same may be used or placed, or the value thereof, to be recovered by the said owner in any court having jurisdiction of the subject matter."

BRIBERY INVESTIGATION

the presence of Drs Plummer and [illegible] unqualified and emphatic denial not a knowledge of any corrupt attempt upon Mr Ford, but of the existence of such a [illegible] had no information or knowledge whatever [illegible] that conversation that Mr Ford was using proper or improper in my behalf

Q—Did you have any knowledge or [illegible] prior to that time that is the time the [illegible] man first spoke to you in conversation [illegible] that any person from Polk county had been [illegible] to come to Salem to see Mr Nichols or [illegible] members of the Polk county delegation [illegible]

A—I had not the slightest. If any [illegible] sent for for the purpose of inducing Nic[illegible] other member to vote for me I have no [illegible] of it. I know there were a number of [illegible] from Polk county advising with their del[illegible] endeavoring to influence them that it [illegible] duty to support the nominee of the caucus. Quite a number of these gentl[emen called] on me at different times and with the [illegible] torial question was discussed generally [illegible] possible the name of Mr Nichols [illegible] mentioned, but I have no recollection [illegible] now. But I am positive no suggestion [was] made to me by any person in the shape of [illegible] that any person from Polk county or any [illegible] be sent for to speak to Mr. Nichols on that [illegible]

Jamison—Was it at your suggestion or knowledge that Hayden and Watkinds would [go] after Ford?

A—After having talked with Nichols the[re]fore, which was the first information I had [illegible] I made some inquiry as to whether such [a] man lived in Polk county. My first recollection [illegible] that Governor Chadwick told me first that [there was] such a gentleman living there. Perhaps [illegible] me. At all events I became satisfied [illegible] that there was a Robert Ford living at [illegible] paid no further attention to the matter [illegible] made no effort whatever to see Ford or [illegible] body else see him. The next day (Thurs[day I] believe) on receipt of THE OREGONIAN which [ar]rived at the capitol at nearly 11.30, on reading [the] Salem correspondence in that issue referring [to the] alleged attempt at bribery I immediately [sent a] message to the house of representatives [illegible] Dr Plummer and three or four other [illegible] to come to the committee room where I was [illegible] the messenger was gone I wrote the [resolution de]manding an investigation. On Dr [illegible] ing to my room a few minutes afterward [accom]pany with three or four other representatives [I] handed him the resolution which I had [com]pleted and requested him to present it in the house, and accompany it with the state[ment] if he would, that the resolution was in [my] handwriting, that I unqualifiedly denied [all knowl]edge or participation in any corrupt attempt [illegible] interest, and that I demanded the fullest inv[estiga]tion. I then left the capitol, went to the [illegible] hotel with the purpose of finding some [per]son who knew Robert Ford and [who] would be willing to go to [illegible] to bring him before the investigating com[mittee] which I expected would hold a session [illegible] as I was fearful if the matter was delayed [illegible] committee would meet and organize and a sub[poena] should issue, that the proceedings would be [delay]ed, which I was earnestly desirous of avoiding. [On] getting to the hotel I met Governor Chadwick [and] inquired of him if he knew any good per[son] who might be willing to go and bring him [before] the committee that night. He mentioned two [persons.] One was Mr Holmes, who, I believe, is [illegible] attorney here, and the other was Judge Hayd[en.] I said to Gov. Chadwick, "Tell Holmes if you see [him] that I would be pleased to see him at the h[otel] convenient." He said he would do so. I separ[ated] from him in the hall of the Hotel and in a [few] five minutes I accidentally met Judge Hayd[en, and] asked him if he knew Bob Ford, of Dallas. He [said] he did. I told him of the resolution of inves[tiga]tion, and that I presumed the committee [would sit] that evening; that I was anxious to get the f[acts in] the case at the earliest moment and I asked hi[m if] he would be willing to get a carriage and g[o to Dal]las, get Mr Ford and bring him to the [Cap]itol that evening that he might be examined be[fore] the investigating committee. He said he w[ould] do so, but would like to get somebody to g[o with] him. I told him, "All right," to get anybod[y he] pleased, or words to that effect. We separate[d] for a few minutes. He sent for a carriage [and] within five minutes after the first [con]versation with Hayden, he said he [had] seen Bill Watkinds and he was going [with] him. In fact, he brought Watkinds to me in [the] hall of the hotel, and said he was going with [him.] On his return from Dallas without Ford, h[e in]formed me he had tried his best to induce For[d to] accompany him before the investigation commit[tee] but he (Ford) had peremptorily declined to c[ome] unless subpoenaed, but stated to him (Hayden) [in the] presence of three or four other gentlemen, Mr E[illegible] I think, and Mr Richmond and Mr. Watkinds [that] he was willing to give a statement which they co[uld] take to the committee, which he did, and in wh[ich] he denied positively having made any corrupt [offer] to Nichols, and in which he also denied know[ing] me. The statement was attested by Messrs El[illegible] and Richmond, and is in the following words [illegible]

[Ford's statement which was published yesterd[ay] was here copied in, the original of which [was] attached yesterday as an exhibit to F[ord's] testimony.]

Judge Hayden also informed me on his retu[rn] that Mr. Ford told him and the other gentlemen [that] if the committee desired his presence before th[em] and would send a subpoena he could be found at [his] home in Dallas. I think he complained of be[ing] unwell.

This ended the examination of Mitchell.

Nichols was here recalled by Mr Thompson.

Thompson—Yesterday when Mr Robert Ford [was] on the witness stand after giving his version of [the] conversation between himself and you in the ha[ll of] the house of representatives on Wednesday he [illegible] by saying 'Frank that is all a joke.' Did I [illegible] not Mr. Ford use that language, or any language [of that nature] on that subject?

Nichols—He most certainly did not

Q—What was the nature of that conversa[tion with] reference to its being serious and in earnest

A—Mr Ford on that occasion talked and acted [as] though he was in earnest. At any rate I believ[ed] him to be in earnest and do yet

Q—Have you had sufficient acquaintance with [him] to be enabled to tell when he is in earnest and wh[en] he is joking?

A—I think I have

Q—If there is any other matter in Mr F[ord's] testimony concerning which you desire to make any p[er]sonal explanation please do so with[illegible]

A—I did not hear all of Mr Ford's testim[ony] [I] was out of the room part of the tim[e] [illegible] sation, however, as detailed by Ford [illegible] place in the hall was not fully stat[ed] [illegible] stated very little of it

Mitchell—Mr Nichols in 1878 when M[itchell] and myself were candidates for the Unit[ed States] senate, were you in the lobby at Sal[em] [illegible] persistently and earnestly to defeat my [election] after I had received the [illegible]

Committee failed the [illegible]

SUPPLEMENT.

SOME THINGS ABOUT ALEXANDRIA

Its Origin

Tyre [illegible] [Alex]ander. Angry at its resistance he resolved [illegible] capture to ruin it forever [illegible] revenge he was fulfilling [illegible] ken long before his own birth [illegible] a desolation. Alone [illegible] small fishing village with an island in front. His quick eye took at a glance [illegible] His engineers [illegible] city. Here for nearly [illegible] was the place [illegible] a great city and access to Egypt and the marine emporium of the eastern world

ITS LIBRARY

Some fifty years later Ptolemy [illegible] of that long line of Greeks who ruled Egypt until the days of Cleopatra, became an ardent patron of learning. Every ship entering the harbor was searched by his officers and if any book was found it was copied for the king's library [illegible] seventy Jewish [illegible] translate the Hebrew scriptures into Greek [illegible] employed to [illegible] Homer and the best Greek literature for [illegible] the world was fixed at Alexandria. Grammar, geometry, all rising sciences were taught and the first university was thus brought into being. Even Athens did less for the mind of the world

THE ROMANS

Here Julius Caesar interfered in Roman style between Cleopatra and her half brother and Egypt soon became a Roman province. Caesar went and sat alone in Alexander's tomb holding in his hand his brother-conqueror's embalmed heart no longer [illegible] with ambition. What must [illegible] Egypt in apostolic times was the granary of Rome Alexandria, a splendid city giving to the church Apollos the sacred orator and early becoming a seat of Christian learning, as it had been of classical

THE MAHOMETANS

For more than a thousand years the crescent has been upon the city's towers. The Moslems found it still a great city. Under them it has fared variously. Its library long ago vanished though historians differ as to when and how. Still its natural position as key to the Levant, and with the only good harbor in its region has kept its importance and even the Suez canal has not superseded it. Always dirty, often badly governed, it is now nearly as important as under Ptolemy or Cleopatra, or Augustus

ARABI

Arabi's effort is made against Turks and all foreigners and in behalf of Arab rule. He is a pure Arab and of a temper wonderfully like that of Mahomet himself. It has long been thought that the Moslem headship would be taken from the Turk and that the Commander of the Faithful would again be an Arabian on the sacred soil trodden by the prophet. Arabi was born while his parents were on a pilgrimage to Mecca. His blood is fired with thoughts of a great calling, and it is possible that under him the Moslems of the desert may make a wild rally against all infidels and the Turk whom they regard as unfaithful to Islam and as the tool of infidels fall thus at last.

The guns of Admiral Seymour are terrible, but a fierce struggle, reaching far and wide over the eastern world, may be at hand. Arabi's slight, received in the promotion of Turkish over Arab officers in the Egyptian army the visible cause of the present trouble, may kindle a great conflagration. Certainly for 2214 years Alexandria has been a wonderful city.

A RELIC OF POMPEII

Discovery in the Ancient Ruins of a Painting of Solomon's Temple.

Mr Eustace Neville Rolfe, writing from Naples on August 24 to the London Times, says An important painting has been found at Pompeii, and was yesterday placed in the Naples museum among the Pompeian frescoes. It represents the judgment of Solomon, and is the first picture on a sacred subject, the first fragment either of Judaism or Christianity, that has been discovered in the buried cities. I have, therefore, studied it carefully this morning and forward a description of it, as I think the discovery of such a painting is a matter of public interest. The picture is five and a half feet long and nineteen inches in hight, and is surrounded by a black line about an inch in width. The scene is laid upon a terrace in front of a house adorned with creeping plants and shaded with a white awning. On a dais (represented as being about four feet high) sits the king, holding a scepter and robed in white. On each side of him sits a councillor, and behind six soldiers under arms. The king is represented as leaning over the front of the dais toward a woman in a green robe, who kneels before him with disheveled hair and outstretched hands. In the center of the court is a three-legged table like a butcher's block, upon which lies an infant, which is held in a recumbent position, in spite of his struggles, by a woman wearing a turban. A soldier in armor and wearing a helmet with a long red plume holds the legs of the infant and is about to cleave it in two with his falchion. A group of spectators completes the picture, which contains in all nineteen figures. The drawing is poor, but the colors are particularly bright, and the preservation is excellent. As a work of art, it is below the average of Pompeian standard, but it is full of spirit and drawn with great freedom. The bodies of the figures are dwarfed, and their heads (out of all proportion) large, which gives color to the assertion that it was intended as a caricature against the Jews and their religion. This may be so, but my own impression is that the artist was anxious to develop the facial expression, and, to do this, exaggerated the heads. There is nothing of the caricature about it in other respects—the agony of the kneeling mother, the attention of the listening king, and the triumph of the second woman, who gloats over the division of the child—are all manifest, and to my mind there is no attempt, intentionally, to burlesque the incident, but this a matter of opinion.

SPECULATING IN CATTLE IN WYOMING TERRITORY.

No Experience Needed to be Successful.

From the Laramie, Wyoming, Boomerang

With the present high prices of beef and the cow literally jumping over the moon, Wyoming men are reaping a rich harvest, and many of them will make independent fortunes this summer. The rise has been so rapid and transfers are made so easily that large transactions are made every day in which the buyer does not see a hoof of his purchase, and very likely does not actually use more than one-half of the purchase money in the trade before he has sold and made an enormous margin in the deal. A year ago a Laramie plains cattle man was offered a large Utah herd and ranch for $70,000, which offer was accepted at the moment, but later rejected. Since that the Utah man sold $45 000 worth of the herd, then sold the ranch for 4500, afterward put $9000 more into the bunch, and last week sold it for $140,000. In other words, the Utah man is ahead over $110,000 because his last year's offer was not accepted. A Cheyenne man who doesn't pretend to know a maverick from a mandamus has made a neat little margin of $15,000 this summer on small transactions, and hasn't seen a cow yet that he bought and sold. Cheyenne is wild over the market, and Sixteenth street is a young Wall street. Millions are talked of as lightly as nickles, and all kinds of people in all professions are dabbling in steers. The chief justice of the supreme court has recently succumbed to the contagious excitement, and has gone to purchase a $40,000 herd. Everywhere the excitement is as bad as it ever was in mining stocks in the old palmy days of Comstock. How long this thing will continue is a matter of pure speculation. Whether the laboring classes of the "states" will eat porter-house steaks when they taste like a government bond or quit all at once and knock the bottom out of the Chicago market, no man knows to a dead moral certainty. Of course all is smooth sailing now but we doubt the propriety of fooling with this thing right along for six months, for one of these days buyers will insist on a delivery of the goods and sales can not be made immediately enough to omit the universal kerplunk. We may not be using the correct terms perhaps but our meaning may be readily gathered.

What of Blaine?

Philadelphia Times

The semi official announcement made in the city papers of the distinguished republican orators from other states who are about to be flung into the Pennsylvania struggle, is notable for the omission of the one name that the republicans of Pennsylvania must honor—James G Blaine. Chairman Cooper modestly announces that James G Blaine will not speak out of his own state.

Mr Blaine will not speak in Pennsylvania nor will he speak in any other state this year on political issues, and why? The answer must be obvious to every intelligent observer of political events. He can't speak in New York, because he would there be compelled to advocate the cause of Arthur-Conkling and John Kelly. He can't speak in Pennsylvania, because here he must advocate the cause of the Cameron machine that has twice betrayed Blaine and the overwhelming sentiment of the party in the state in national conventions. He can't speak in Virginia because he would there be compelled to advocate the betrayal of the republicans to the naked rascality of repudiation and he can't speak in South Carolina or Mississippi because he would there be compelled to champion the greenback cause he has just throttled and overthrown in Maine

Blaine could speak for the independent cause in Pennsylvania if he were alight [illegible] to be heard [illegible] the bustings of his native state [illegible] the two blades of [illegible] That the republican [illegible] little and would be [illegible] as the republican party [illegible] Maine, the pretty [illegible] plumed knight will [illegible] laurels gained in his own [illegible] as the republican [illegible] smashed. A New Yorker who is largely interested in one of the fast line of steamers made a trip to Charleston a few weeks ago and soon after leaving New York a storm came on and the craft was tumbled about in a manner to frighten many of the passengers into the belief that their last hour had come. The stock owner was the sickest of the lot and in the midst of his woes he was approached by a friend who is largely interested in New England railroads. I understand you began the railroad man that you are considerably interested in this line? Yes. You own about half of it don't you? I—I believe I do. Do you own any railroads? Yes two or three. And do you run trains on them? Of course. And they stop at stations? Certainly. Then you are the biggest fool in America for traveling on a steamboat even if you do own half the line! shouted the sick man and he turned his face to the wall to wait for death to come — Wall Street News

Sellwood.

A Beautiful Suburban Town on the East Shore of the Willamette.

The Best Opportunity of the Time for a Home.

The streets and avenues of this beautiful site are being rapidly cleared, and lots and blocks are now ready for sale

Its Advantages to Residents

Are rapid and direct ferry communication with the city, almost level and easily cleared ground, good soil and the facility for furnishing pure water

The Steam Ferry

Which the Company guarantees for two years will in a pleasant ride of twenty minutes, land you where you can buy a lot for one tenth the sum asked for one in twenty minutes walk from the business center of Portland, and in the spring when the large and swift steamer for which the Company is negotiating is put on the trip will be reduced to fifteen minutes each way, at the nominal fare of five cents.

Other Means of Access.

No other site near Portland has been improved so lavishly by its proprietors as Sellwood for the convenience of purchasers and residents. Streets have been opened and cleared, and a plank road from the river to the railroad station at Willsburg is projected, and grading and planking of part of it has been ordered this year, connecting, by a ferry soon to be put on, with Fulton and the macadam road. This road will also cross the East Portland and Oregon City road so that means of access by railroads, steamer and wagon roads will be unequaled

Pure Spring Water.

As soon as a sufficient number of lots have been sold to justify it, the best of spring water will be brought through the town, the creek which crosses the eastern length of the site furnishing ample power for the purpose

The Sellwood Ferry Guaranteed.

At a meeting of the Board of Directors of the Sellwood Real Estate Co, held August 21, 1882 the following resolution was adopted

'RESOLVED That the Sellwood Real Estate Company hereby guarantee that they will keep a Ferry in operation between the town of Sellwood and Portland at present prices to residents of Sellwood for a period of two years, except when unavoidable accidents cause temporary suspension."

HERBALISM

Is the oldest and grandest system of medical treatment in the world. It is the application of nature's simplest remedies for the removal of disorders set on by artificial life. It came in with Adam and will go out with the last man. And the fruit thereof shall be for meat and the leaf thereof shall be for medicine.—Ezekiel 47th chapter 12th verse. When universally practiced in this and other countries there was small loss of life and men lived as a rule their allotted time and even far beyond. Mercury and the Lancet causes more deaths in quiet sick beds than the sword and cannon on the field of battle. Reaction is taking place and common sense is asserting itself in the minds and conduct of the people and the clever and accomplished herbalist becomes again the doctor for the million.

Asthma, Catarrh and Lung troubles cured by Dr. Perry Pratt astonished the best doctors in London and Paris and yet he uses nothing but simple herbs. There is a disease which produces pains about the body that thousands of people treat for Rheumatism but are never cured. The pains occur about any part of the body but are most apt to occur in one of the hip joints passing down the sciatic nerve, it is often called Sciatic Rheumatism. This disease affects the heart and the entire nerve system and is wasting and debilitating to the entire body. There is an absolute cure for this disease and those who may suffer in this respect will be informed of the cause of it and of its presence by an examination by Dr. Pratt, who on an examination of the action of the heart will point out the disease without asking a question
